Firemen Heard On Pay Issue

Monroe firemen Friday, through their union, called on Mayor W. L. Howard to apply his "fair and just" test to the cause of fire fighters' salary raises.

Quoting from a statement of Howard's that legislators should "concern themselves with what is just and fair," firemen asked if a $400 minimum salary is too generous when our Mayor is being paid $1,000 a month?

The question came in a statement from Monroe Local 629 of the International Association of Fire Fighters.

The statement marked the first time that the local firemen had entered their voice in the public dispute over a bill in the Louisiana Legislature which would grant them an increase from a $300 a month minimum wage to a $400 base pay and up according to grade, and would also make mandatory an annual two per cent salary increase. The legislation has already received approval in the House.

Howard has opposed the bill saying that the city does not have the money to implement it and adding that the Legislature is violating home rule in raising city employees' salaries without allocating funds.

The union's statement: "In connection with the bill presently pending in the Legislature concerning a raise for city firemen, Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard was quoted in a recent statement to the press as follows:

"I think that the representatives ought not to be concerned about the big man or the little man, but rather, they should concern themselves with what is just and fair."
"The question, it seems to us, is what exactly falls within the mayor's 'just and fair' test. In the late 1950's the mayor's salary was increased to $1,000 per month. The firemen are requesting a minimum pay scale of $400 per month. Is it possible for intelligent people to be convinced that a wage of $400 per month for starting firemen is too generous to be 'just and fair' when our mayor is being paid $1,000 per month?"

"Any housewife who pays today's prices at the grocery store can certainly apply the mayor's 'just and fair' test to a minimum monthly wage of $300 per month, which is the present law. Our firemen are required to risk their lives and time again for the protection of the people of this city and their property. Local officials all over the State keep crying 'Let us do it. Let us handle our own affairs.' Don't go to the Legislature. But the startling fact is that the local officials have had ten years to do something about the pathetically low minimum wage of $300 per month for local firemen and have not budged one inch."

"In connection with the city's cry of insufficient funds, it is pointed out that the city will have ample time to obtain funds to cover this pay increase. It will be January 1967 before any of it goes into effect. At that time only a $50 raise per month will be effective; then, in June of 1967 another $25 per month raise, and in January 1968 the remaining $25. Certainly this is not too much to ask for dedicated public employees."

"We want the public to know that our firemen work a 60 hour week as compared to a 40 to 48 hour week in many other city employees. In order to maintain a living wage our firemen must have a raise in pay. When local officials will not act, then we have no alternative but to request the Legislature to do what is 'just and fair'."

New Self-Immolations Reported In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two more Buddhist nuns burned themselves to death today. They were the seventh and eighth suicides this week in the Buddhist campaign to bring down South Viet Nam's military government.

The new self-immolations came after threats from the militant wing of the divided Buddhist movement to wreck the government's precarious truce with them after weeks of civil strife and violence.

Buddhist leaders' public exhortations to the rank and file to stop the fiery suicides — a factor in the overthrow of the Diem government in 1963 — apparently were having no effect.

The new suicides were at Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, and here in the capital where 24-year-old Thich (Venerable) No Bao Luau set herself aflame in front of the Buddhists' main pagoda in early morning darkness.

A spokesman said Nu Bao Luau left letters protesting the government movement of troops into Hue, the old imperial capital and a Buddhist stronghold 200 miles from Saigon.

The self-immolation at Nha Trang was in a Buddhist schoolyard.

The nun was not identified immediately.

Both suicides followed another nun's immolation Friday, the sixth in the wave of fiery deaths that began last Sunday.

U.S. officials, watching the mounting political confusion which has overshadowed the war with the Communists for weeks, declined to make any comment.

Among the make-or-break factors that could ultimately influence American involvement in the war against the Viet Cong and against social and economic ills of South Viet Nam.

Influential Thich Tri Quang, chief of the militants, proclaimed at a news conference in Hue that he will order the Buddhists to boycott all elections held by the government this year. Specifically that meant the vote, scheduled for Sept. 11, to choose a constituent assembly.

Heckled since he led Buddhists into a compromise with government representatives Wednesday that calls for the addition of 10 civilians to the ruling 10-man military directorate, moderate Thich Tam Chau submitted his resignation as head of the Buddhist Institute.

Appeal Court Denies Delay For Primary

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court turned down Friday a request by the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party to put off the June 6 Democratic Primary.

A three judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to issue an injunction sought by the predominantly Negro group to delay the election.

Dist. Judge Claude Clayton of Tupelo had denied the FDP the injunction earlier this year.

FORMAL DECISION — The appeals court said that a formal decision on the ruling would be handed down later.

Judges John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans, W. Harold Cox of Jackson and Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., comprised the panel.

Attorneys for the civil-rights oriented political party argued that intensive campaigns by out-of-state workers were necessary to persuade significant numbers of rural Negroes to register.

Alexandria D. Shinkin, a 21-year-old white volunteer FDP worker from Champaign-Urbana, Ill., testified before Judge Clayton last month that rural Negroes "had a great fear of being evicted" from plantations if they sought to register.

Testimony also came from officials conducting federal voter registration campaigns in the state under provisions of the Federal Voting Rights Act.

After the district court ruling refusing the FDP an injunction, the case was argued before the appeals court.

Benjamin Smith, an FDP attorney, said the delay would in no way damage a June election process in Mississippi.

Smith said that of 448,000 potential voters, only 6.4 per cent were registered prior to the Voting Rights Act. He said there were now 33.6 Negroes registered.

"It is obvious from these figures that there has been a tremendous increase in Negro registration, especially since a postponement of federal registration is just that there has been enough time to get all the people on the rolls in Mississippi," Smith said.

Wells said the delay will be a burden on election machinery and that those persons who can read and write have had since August, 1965, to register, and those who were illiterate could have registered since the fall.

STONE HOME — A mob also stoned and tried to break into the home of an American Embassy employee, Robert Dollar, 26, and his wife, Nancy.

Dominican police drove off the attackers. Members of the mob said they had tried to charge into the house because they thought two men with stolen ballot boxes were inside.

Mrs. Dollar was at home with her two-week-old son and her mother, Mrs. Walter Trohan, wife of the Washington bureau chief, of the Chicago Tribune. A family friend Jules Dubois, member of the Tribune staff, also was in the house.

Mrs. Dollar and Mrs. Trohan were not injured although both were shaken by their experience. When police arrived on the scene, members of the mob were on the roof and trying to force doors.

Later, mob members said they were chasing two men in a dispute over the election outcome, and attacked the house because a shot came from that direction. Neighbors denied there was any gunfire.

Red Supply Lines Hurt By Bombing

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Infantrymen wiped out two small bands of Viet Cong guerrillas harassing the outskirts of Saigon, American military spokesmen said today.

The U.S. troops swept through an area the Viet Cong used to interfere with Saigon river traffic and supply guerrillas operating near the capital. Seven Viet Cong were killed in the operation.

On Friday, a U.S. military spokesman disclosed that mass bombings of North Viet Nam this week brought chaos to Communist supply lines and anti-aircraft batteries. But the U.S. Air Force lost seven planes and possibly the lives of six crewmen.

HEAVIEST ATTACKS — In four consecutive days, the U.S. carried out the heaviest air attacks over the North since President Johnson ordered an end to the diplomatic pause in bombings last Jan. 31.

Helicopter and seaplane rescue crews picked up three of nine airmen downed during the attacks.

Troops of the U.S. Army's 1st Infantry Division killed the seven Viet Cong and sank two sampans Friday night in two separate encounters with Communists during "Operation Lexington" in the river and canal district 18 miles southwest of here.

The U.S. spokesman said 73 more missions were flown by Air Force and Navy planes Thursday. Most of the strikes were along the coast, but some of the planes swept inland to again batter the Mu Gia Pass, gateway to the Ho Chi Minh Trail supply line of the Viet Cong.

It was disclosed at the same time Friday that troops of the U.S. Army's 1st Infantry Division launched a major ground offensive against the Communists north of Saigon May 30. The spokesman said, however, only three Viet Cong were reported killed in the first four days of the sweep-called Adelaide I and II.

The devastating air raids since Monday have cost the Air Force five F105 Thunderchief fighters, bombers and two F4C Phantoms. Although the North Vietnamese fired at least eight of their Soviet-supplied surface-to-air missiles (SAM) at the U.S. planes, none reached their target and those planes lost were brought down by conventional anti-aircraft fire.

A number of anti-aircraft batteries were silenced by the American planes, including eight sites smashed in the Dong Hoi region alone on Thursday. Air Force B52 jet bombers from Guam struck a suspected Communist troop concentration in Quang Ngai Province, south of the 17th Parallel, at midnight Thursday and other U.S. planes flew 346 sorties against Viet Cong elsewhere in the South.

(The State Department reiterated Friday that the United States was willing to consider another pause in bombing of North Viet Nam if the Hanoi regime would take some "reciprocal action" — presumably stop sending troops into the South.

Chief of the air force, the 32-year-old general has been leading since early last month with the generals. They accuse him of setting up his own reign at Savannakhet and refusing to carry out orders.

Thao personally flies and directs bombing missions of U.S. built T28 fighter-bombers against Communist forces in Laos and the Ho Chi Minh Trail supplying the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

Finance Minister Sisouk Nakhomphak flew to Savannakhet on Friday and met with Phao in an attempt to settle the crisis. He told reporters on his return that the seizure Thursday was due to a misunderstanding.

What makes the situation embarrassing is that Phao refuses to let any planes land except those of Air America, a private company operating in Laos to supply the U.S. aid mission.

Sisouk admitted the situation was unresolved but said Phao had promised to come to Vientiane after Premier Souvanna Phouma returns from abroad Monday. The premier is accompanying King Savang Vatthana on a visit to the Soviet Union.

Astronaut Cernan May Try To Take Shield Off 'Glob'

Says Governor

Veto Doubted On Welfare Measure

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen said Friday he would be "most reluctant" to veto a $100 monthly top welfare payment for the elderly if it should clear the legislature.

He told a news conference, he would rather not comment on legislation that had not completed its trip through the legislature, because this may be prejudicial.

But he said if the Senate agrees to House amendments on the measure by Sen. Dudley J. LeBlanc of Abbeville and it is sent to his desk he would find it hard not to sign.

Welfare officials have estimated that the bill would cost about $23 million, of which $14.1 million would have to be provided by the state. McKeithen said, he felt it incumbent on an administration to try to find the money to pay for such a legislative act.

The measure returns to the Senate Monday when the legislature comes back to work.

On other topics, McKeithen said. Rep. Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish drew per diem from two state agencies for the same day, as published reports indicated, Womack should repay the state for that received from one agency.

As to reports Womack received $47,000 in per diem and expenses from the state in four days of the sweep-called Adelaide I and II.

Feat Slated During Solo Spacewalk

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Hard-luck astronaut Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan raced to a space rendezvous Friday with a target satellite dangling its protective shield "like an angry alligator." Gemini 9 flight directors said Cernan might make a daring attempt to remove the shield in a "spacewalk" today.

IF SAFE — Officials at Space Center emphasized that Cernan would try the trip to the weird-looking space satellite called "The Glob" only if they are convinced the operation is safe.

Cernan is already scheduled to start a record breaking around-the-world solo voyage attached to a 120-foot lifeline at about 9:30 a.m. CST today.

The dangling fiberglass shield blocked plans to achieve a space docking between the twice-grounded Gemini 9 capsule and the Glob. Space officials wrestled with the problem of whether to send Cernan out to remove it as the astronauts made preparations to bed down to the strains of recorded country and jazz music.

The shield, designed to protect the target satellite during its launch last Wednesday, was to have been blown off in space by eight explosive bolts to expose the docking cone of the Glob.

For two days, until Gemini 9 sighted it, Gemini control could not tell whether the shroud had come off. The astronauts found it half on and half off, split in two but still attached.

At 7 p.m. EDT, 10 hours and 40 minutes after blasting off on a plume of smoke and flame at Cape Kennedy, the astronauts settled down for a night's sleep. Mission Control said there would be no further voice communication with them for eight hours.

Gemini 9 entered its seventh orbit at 7:19 p.m. EDT.

In their last conversation of the day, while passing over Hawaii on their sixth orbit, Gemini 9 was told to look for a storm in the earth's atmosphere. Stafford said it "looks like we're going to miss the storm," because it was too far south of their path.

The cool proposal by command pilot Stafford that he try to space-ram the shroud loose was turned down by his superiors on the ground. Presumably it was too dangerous.

If the shield cannot be removed, plans to achieve a series of delicate dockings between the Gemini and the satellite apparently would be ruined.

Such a docking had been scheduled for immediately after Friday's first rendezvous between the Gemini and the satellite, called the "Glob."

Instead, the astronauts settled for another rendezvous and planned a third for today.

Each rendezvous Friday brought the two space crafts to within a few feet of each other. Hopes were still high for Gemini's mission. But the strange troubles which dogged its course followed the capsule into space.

That became apparent when Stafford wound up a four-hour chase of the Glob and found it tumbling 185 miles above the earth, its protective covering dangling in two sections.

Stafford reported calmly: "I've got a weird-looking machine (in sight). It looks like an angry alligator rolling around out here. It's moving all around."

Red Supply Lines Hurt By Bombing

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Infantrymen wiped out two small bands of Viet Cong guerrillas harassing the outskirts of Saigon, American military spokesmen said today.

The U.S. troops swept through an area the Viet Cong used to interfere with Saigon river traffic and supply guerrillas operating near the capital. Seven Viet Cong were killed in the operation.

On Friday, a U.S. military spokesman disclosed that mass bombings of North Viet Nam this week brought chaos to Communist supply lines and anti-aircraft batteries. But the U.S. Air Force lost seven planes and possibly the lives of six crewmen.

In four consecutive days, the U.S. carried out the heaviest air attacks over the North since President Johnson ordered an end to the diplomatic pause in bombings last Jan. 31.

Air Force B52 jet bombers from Guam struck a suspected Communist troop concentration in Quang Ngai Province, south of the 17th Parallel, at midnight Thursday and other U.S. planes flew 346 sorties against Viet Cong elsewhere in the South.

(The State Department reiterated Friday that the United States was willing to consider another pause in bombing of North Viet Nam if the Hanoi regime would take some "reciprocal action"—presumably stop sending troops into the South.

New Crisis Developing Within Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Revolving against generals of the Laotian high command, Brig. Gen. Thao Mao has seized the airport at Savannakhet in southern Laos, a government official said Friday.

Chief of the air force, the 32-year-old general has been feuding since early last month with the generals. They accuse him of setting up his own reign at Savannakhet and refusing to carry out orders.

Thao personally flies and directs bombing missions of U.S.-built T28 fighter-bombers against Communist forces in Laos and the Ho Chi Minh Trail supplying the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

Finance Minister Sisouk Natchampassak flew to Savannakhet on Friday and met with Thao in an attempt to settle the crisis. He told reporters on his return that the seizure Thursday was due to a misunderstanding.

What makes the situation embarrassing is that Thao refuses to let any planes land except those of Air America, a private company operating in Laos to supply the U.S. aid mission.

Sisouk admitted the situation was unresolved but said Thao had promised to come to Vientiane after Premier Souvanna Phouma returns from abroad Monday. The premier is accompanying King Savang Vatthana on a visit to the Soviet Union.

Veto Doubted On Welfare Measure

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen said Friday he would be "most reluctant" to veto a $100 monthly welfare payment for the elderly if it should clear the legislature.

He told a news conference, he would rather not comment on legislation that had not completed its trip through the legislature, because this may be prejudicial.

But he said if the Senate agrees to House amendments on the measure by Sen. Dudley J. LeBlanc of Abbeville and it is sent to his desk he would find it hard not to sign.

Welfare officials have estimated that the bill would cost about $23 million, of which $14.1 million would have to be provided by the state. McKeithen said, he felt it incumbent on an administration to try to find the money to pay for such a legislative act.

The measure returns to the Senate Monday when the legislature comes back to work.

SHOULD REPAY

On other topics, McKeithen said:

If Rep. Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish drew per diem from two state agencies for the same day, as published reports indicated, Womack should repay the state for that received from one agency.

As to reports Womack received $47,000 in per diem and expenses from the state in four years, some of it overlapping, Womack probably "spends more time in state government than I do."

In fairness to Rep. Womack, he spends virtually full time working in state government.

He knew nothing about rumors Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., plans to retire after he wins reelection and the governor would name James W. Moore, of Monroe vice chairman of the highway board, to the Senate post.

The administration will support a congressional redistricting plan if the legislature continues to show inability to agree on the issue.

He is sure the legislature will act during the current session on congressional redistricting and on Senate reappointment.

Both issues are pending in the federal courts.

On legislation that would provide annual 60-day legislatures, "we don't need them."

He is pledged to signing a legislative act increasing retirement benefits for teachers, and also legislation in the mill to finance driver education providing proper safeguards against private gain are written in.

His administration does not support a one-cent sales tax raise proposed by Rep. Fred Schiele and Sen. Howard Jones and he does not believe the legislature will pass it.

Viet Power Struggle Believed 'Internal'

WASHINGTON (AP)—High administration officials both in Washington and in Saigon say they interpret the political turmoil in South Viet Nam as an internal power struggle rather than a dispute over the American presence there.

Sources—while emphasizing current administration thinking is necessarily tentative—reported Friday even so militant a Buddhist leader as Thich Tri Quang has told Americans that the real object of anti-American demonstrations and violence has been to win American support for Buddhist political objectives.

In essence, the political upheaval is pictured here as a power struggle among the South Vietnamese themselves "behind a shield of American protection."

Officials contend the United States is neither optimistic nor pessimistic about the outlook and is seeking to be realistic. But they argue that American military successes actually paved the way for the political turmoil.

According to this argument, the very fact that American troop strength and firepower gained military supremacy over the Viet Cong in the troubled 1st Corps area prompted both Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and militant Buddhists to see a turning of the tide.

Carrying the argument further, the officials say that had this not been so it is doubtful Ky would have fired the powerful 1st Corps commander whose ouster sparked the Buddhist uprising.

The Buddhists, according to the argument, also saw a turn in the military tide and decided the time was ripe to mount a strong bid for power.

The administration has been encouraged by the fact that the Viet Cong have not capitalized in any important way on the political turmoil, though they believed Communist agents did infiltrate the Buddhist camp to some extent.

Even when the Saigon government lost all control in the Da Nang-Hue area, the Viet Cong did not mount a major offensive. Officials said that the Communists perhaps were waiting for the monsoon season and to assess the progress of the Buddhist bid to topple the Ky Government.

Former Education Supt. Shelby Jackson is not under consideration for a post on the Louisiana Sovereignty Commission. Rep. James Leake of West Feliciana last week was criticized for drawing about $1,700 in per diem over a four-year period from the Louisiana Financial Assistance Commission. Leake repaid the state.

McKeithen was questioned about the reports that Womack drew $47,000 in per diem and expenses, some of it overlapping. Womack has served on the Financial Assistance Commission, the legislative committee on segregation and the legislative budget committee.

McKeithen said Womack, as vice chairman of the Financial Assistance Commission, has served much of the time as chairman and perhaps this, along with his service on the Legislative Budget Committee, ran up his expenses and per diem.

If the public feels Womack should not draw that much money, McKeithen said, perhaps the jobs should be divided up more. He said this was no indication he will seek Womack's removal from any agency.

The House has adopted a resolution absolving Womack and Leake of wrongdoing in accepting per diem from the Financial Assistance Commission, although the law says only actual expenses can be paid.

The resolution said it never was the intent of the legislature that they not be paid for time spent working for the commission.

Philippines To Commit Troops

MANILA (AP) — The Philippine Senate cleared the way today for President Ferdinand Marcos to dispatch 2,000 soldiers to South Viet Nam. The detachment will consist of 1,000 engineers and 1,000 security troops.

After long debate, the senators voted 15-8 for appropriation of $8.8 million to finance the troop movement.

The Philippines thus will join the United States, South Korea, Australia and New Zealand as military allies of South Viet Nam in the war against the Communists.

Even when the Saigon government lost all control in the Da Nang-Hue area, the Viet Cong did not mount a major offensive. Officials said that the Communists perhaps were waiting for the monsoon season and to assess the progress of the Buddhist bid to topple the Ky Government.

That became apparent when Stafford wound up a four-hour chase of the Glob and found it tumbling 185 miles above the earth, its protective covering dangling in two sections.

Stafford reported calmly: "I've got a weird-looking machine (in sight) . . . It looks like an angry alligator rolling around out here . . . It's moving all around."

Feat Slated During Solo Spacewalk

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Hard-luck astronauts Thomas Stafford and Eugene Cernan raced to a space rendezvous Friday with a target satellite dangling its protective shield "like an angry alligator." Gemini 9 flight directors said Cernan might make a daring attempt to remove the shield in a "space-walk" today.

IF SAFE

Officials at Space Center emphasized that Cernan would try the trip to the weird-looking space satellite called "The Glob" only if they are convinced the operation is safe. Cernan is already scheduled to start a record-breaking around-the-world solo voyage attached to a 120-foot lifeline at about 9:30 a.m. CST today.

The dangling fiberglass shield blocked plans to achieve a space docking between the twice-grounded Gemini 9 capsule and the Glob. Space officials wrestled with the problem of whether to send Cernan out to remove it as the astronauts made preparations to bed down to the strains of recorded country and jazz music.

The shield, designed to protect the target satellite during its launch last Wednesday, was to have been blown off in space by eight explosive bolts to expose the docking cone of the Glob.

For two days, until Gemini 9 sighted it, Gemini control could not tell whether the shroud had come off. The astronauts found it half on and half off, split in two but still attached.

At 7 p.m. EDT, 9 hours and 40 minutes after blasting off on a plume of smoke and flame at Cape Kennedy, the astronauts settled down for a night's sleep. Mission Control said there would be no further voice communication with them for eight hours.

Gemini 9 entered its seventh orbit at 7:19 p.m. EDT.

In their last conversation of the day, while passing over Hawaii on their sixth orbit, Gemini 9 was told to look for a storm in the earth's atmosphere. Stafford said it "looks like we're going to miss the storm," because it was too far south of their path.

The cool proposal by command pilot Stafford that he try to space-ram the shroud loose was turned down by his superiors on the ground. Presumably it was too dangerous.

If the shield cannot be removed, plans to achieve a series of delicate dockings between the Gemini and the satellite apparently would be ruined.

Such a docking had been scheduled for immediately after Friday's first rendezvous between the Gemini and the satellite, called the "Glob." Instead, the astronauts settled for another rendezvous and planned a third for today.

Each rendezvous Friday brought the two space crafters to within a few feet of each other. Hopes were still high for Gemini's mission. But the strange troubles which dogged its course followed the capsule into space.

That became apparent when Stafford wound up a four-hour chase of the Glob and found it tumbling 185 miles above the earth, its protective covering dangling in two sections.

Stafford reported calmly: "I've got a weird-looking machine (in sight) . . . It looks like an angry alligator rolling around out here . . . It's moving all around."

Air War Going Tough For Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The air war is growing tougher over North Viet Nam and the defenders are hurling more and more Soviet-built missiles at American warplanes.

But U.S. officials think the results, from Hanoi's point of view, must be dismal.

In the past three days of air warfare, the North Vietnamese have fired eight SAMs — surface to air missiles — at American jets. The Americans report eight misses.

Over all, the SAMs are known to have accounted for only 14 of 255 U.S. warplanes shot down over the North.

These figures must be causing concern in Hanoi and Moscow. They are doubtless also being weighed in Cuba, Indonesia, Egypt and Iraq, where the SAM missiles are expensive items of military hardware furnished by Moscow.

It is estimated that about 250 SAM missiles are in North Viet Nam. They have been transported by sea on Soviet ships to the port of Haiphong. Most of the SAMs are installed in the Hanoi-Haiphong area which is, for the moment, a bomb-free sanctuary. But as the American jets have broadened their attacks the SAMs are popping up in widely scattered areas.

The sight of a SAM streaking up from an unsuspected launching site, however, no longer causes much apprehension among American pilots.

When the SAM first appeared last summer and scored a few kills, there was some nervousness. This disappeared within a matter of weeks as the pilots learned through experience that evasion techniques they had been taught were effective.

From that time the main effect of the Soviet "flying telephone poles" has been somewhat contradictory. It forced American fliers to be more alert, and consequently it probably cut losses to some degree. On the other hand, the missiles have forced some flights to come in at lower altitudes, where conventional anti-aircraft fire could reach them. This is because the Soviet missile originally was designed as a defense against high-altitude bombers.

The missile, about 40 feet long, can probably reach an effective altitude of 80,000 feet. Its top speed is more than twice the speed of sound.

The missile's size, speed and control system, however, give it a very wide turning arc that can be evaded by an alert pilot. The relatively awkward missile can almost never be turned back for a second attack.

"They don't come back at you, and we have learned to get out of the way of that first pass," one experienced pilot reported. "Actually, you can't say that the weapon is ineffective. But you can say it's not much good the way it's being used."

In addition, the United States has come up with electronic countermeasures. Radar-laden RB66 planes escort all U.S. raids over North Viet Nam and by still secret techniques they jam the radar guidance systems of the missile sites and deflect the missiles.

Whether the missile sites are manned by North Vietnamese or Russians is a subject American military authorities won't talk much about.

Speaks At Olin Dedication Here

Industrialization Becoming Way Of Life, Governor Says

"Industrialization is becoming as much a part of Louisiana's culture and way of life as gospel singing and Mardi Gras," Gov. John J. McKeithen told more than 100 government and business leaders at Olin Mathieson's industrial complex in West Monroe Friday.

McKeithen, the main speaker at the dedication of the firm's completed $50 million modernization program, said, "This ceremony is symbolic of a bright new day in Louisiana and represents another step in the fall of walls separating business and government."

Other speakers at the afternoon dedication were U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman and M. H. Collet, vice president and general manager of Olin's Forest Products Division.

Passman said that Olin was "the backbone of the economy in the Fifth District."

He compared negotiations between Olin and its 11,000 employees with his campaign every two years. "I have to negotiate a new contract with over 275,000 residents of the Fifth District, and I'm negotiating now."

Collet called the Olin pulp and paper mill, now capable of producing more than 1,000 tons of paper and paper board daily, "one of the most modern and efficient manufacturing operations in the kraft industry."

Because of a "busy schedule," McKeithen did not arrive by plane from Baton Rouge until 1:45 p.m. He had been expected in time for lunch at 12:30. The governor joined other guests in the tour of the plant following dedication ceremonies.

The company also recently began operation of a $3 million pine plywood plant in Winnfield. The total program was completed earlier this year.

Dedication ceremonies followed an hour luncheon program starting at 12:30 p.m., and were held in the shipping shed on the south side of the paper mill building.

A highlight of the dedication was the presentation to the Governor of a Winchester Centennial '66 rifle by Jack Peat, vice president for marketing of City of West Monroe.

- Water - cooling equipment for the re-use of water at the mill.
- A new $1,300,000 effluent control system designed to maintain stream quality in the Ouachita River. This system includes a huge "cascade flume" (unusual in the paper industry) to aerate the water, and four oxidation ponds covering 315 acres.
- Streamlining and enlarging the mill's chemical recovery facilities.
- A new power generating plant.
- New shipping installations.
- Enlarged facilities for the separate handling of pine and hardwood pulpwood.

Olin said that the increased use of hardwood species would help upgrade quality in the mill and make possible the manufacture of several new paper products.

As part of the expansion at West Monroe, Olin also has built a new specialty bag plant, enlarged its original carton plant and installed an off-machine coating operation.

Other than minor improvements and the addition of paper machines, this is the first major modernization of the West Monroe mill since it was built in 1924.

Although the company has plants in 24 states, its largest manufacturing investment is in Louisiana. Besides the Forest Products facilities in West Monroe, the division has plants in New Orleans and Shreveport, as well as at Winnfield. In recent months the Chemicals Division completed the world's largest ammonia plant at a cost of $19-million, and a new $8,000,000 urea plant is nearing completion, officials said. Both are at Lake Charles.

MODERNIZATION

The pulp and paper mill modernization here included:

- Installation of a sixth paper machine with a capacity of 500 tons of kraft paperboard a day, raising total production capacity to more than 1,600 tons daily. The No. 6 is a Black Clawson high - speed, 240 - inch Fourdrinier kraft paper machine with an air knife coater.
- Complete rebuilding of the pulp mill.
- A new river intake and water supply system to reduce the mill's use of well water and increase the amount of underground water available to the

U.S. Sounds China On End To U.S. Bombings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has asked Red China about a no-first-strike nuclear agreement and about an end to U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam, provided the Communists make reciprocal moves.

Disclosing this Friday, State Department officials did not say what reaction, if any, has come from the Reds. Both subjects have been sounded out fruitlessly before.

The U.S. soundings were reported to have been made at the latest American-Communist Chinese ambassadorial meeting at Warsaw, Poland, on May 25.

Solon Speaks Against Plan On Military

World Washington Bureau WASHINGTON — Senator Allen J. Ellender, D-La. says he opposes current proposals for universal military training legislation.

In a statement prepared for radio broadcast, Ellender said, "It is my opinion that little real good would be accomplished by the enactment of such a UMT program at this time."

The increasing need for military manpower in Viet Nam has caused congressional consideration of a program which would compel all draft-age men to serve two years in government service.

After discussing the question with selective service representatives here, Ellender said that "it seems to me that the present system, whereby decisions as to the draft are left in the hands of local boards in the parish level, is a good one."

Concerning criticism of the present draft system, with its different conditions, Ellender said that the situations in the various parishes caused different deferrals to be granted and that "our local draft boards have operated well and, taken as a whole, they have operated very impartially."

Ellender defended the granting of deferments to college students, pointing out that since World War II there has been a shortage in the nation's supply of skilled manpower, particularly in the field of science and technology. "I think that the need of maintaining a good supply of trained and competent people justifies the college exemptions so long as the student maintains his grades," he said.

Board Studies Conflicting State Rules

COLFAX (Special) — A need for revision of conflicting state statutes dealing with the age requirements for school bus drivers was cited at the Grant Parish School Board meeting here.

C. C. Belgard, parish school superintendent, pointed out that the minimum age for school bus drivers is 18 and the maximum is 65, and that, by law, all school bus drivers must become members of the state retirement system.

But, Belgard noted, another statute provides that no school bus driver who is 50 or over is eligible for membership in the state retirement system if employed after he has reached 50. Belgard drew this date from an opinion supplied by John Hunter, of the State Attorney General's office.

Board members decided that the best thing to do is to get more information before they act.

New City Flag To Be Hoisted

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — Alexandria's new official flag will be flown for the first time over City Hall Monday.

The new flag, designed by city sign painter William Potet, was accepted from the manufacturer this week by Mayor W. George Bowdon. The flag design was selected in a special contest held in February, sponsored by the American Legion. Potet was the contest winner.

The flag has a modified seal of the city in the center. In place of "Office of the Mayor," it has words "Post Des Rapides," the city's first name. The background is three equal stripes of blue, red and white, representing Alexandria's tri-umvirate (government by three commissioners) form of government.

Four gold stars on the seal represent the four flags which have flown over Alexandria: Spanish, French, Confederate and United States.

MEASURING RIVER velocity on the DeSiard Traffic Bridge for the U.S. Corps of Engineers Thursday, was

Rate Of Flow Of Ouachita Is Measured

Motorists traveling across the DeSiard Bridge during the past weeks, may have noticed a strange machine on the walkway of the bridge.

The machine, which faintly resembles a crane with a miniature submarine dangling from an iron bar, is a current meter. It is used by the U. S. Corps of Engineers to determine the velocity or rate of flow, in cubic feet per second, of the Ouachita River.

Marvin Geter and William Posey, both of the Gauge and Discharge Station of the Corps of Engineers office at Vicksburg, use the machine once a week in Monroe to determine the volume of the river and how fast the river falls.

The measurements are usually made at the dam near Buckhorn Bend, but "because of high water, we are making them off of the DeSiard Bridge," Geter said.

Geter said approximate rate of flow of the river Thursday, was two - one half cubic feet per second.

Legislation On Stadium To Be Offered

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Gov. John McKeithen and Mayor Victor Schiro of New Orleans said Friday "backstop" legislation will be offered to assure construction of a multi-purpose domed stadium in the New Orleans area.

The proposed constitutional amendment will be offered in the legislature next week. It would open the way either for construction by private businessmen or a stadium authority empowered to levy taxes and issue bonds.

Estimates indicate the stadium may cost $20 million to $30 million.

Private groups will have until Oct. 1 to submit proposals to build and operate the stadium. The stadium authority would have the prerogative to recommend a private group, or to do the job itself if none of the proposals is feasible.

Schiro said financial plans are in the hands of the Gulf South Research Institute, which has been studying the project's possibilities.

GSRI presented a preliminary report to a closed meeting that included the governor, Schiro, New Orleans city councilmen, representatives of the Jefferson Parish government, area businessmen and civic leaders, and sports promoter Dave Dixon.

Bruce Graham, GSRI president, said details will be released when the proposed constitutional amendment is filed. Schiro said if the legislature approves the constitutional amendment it will be held in abeyance pending the submission of a feasible plan for construction of the stadium by private enterprise.

If this happens, he said, the amendment will not go on the ballot. He said the bill will contain a clause making submission of the proposition to the people in November optional. Schiro said the legislation also would contain a clause which could provide standby authority for raising stadium funds if an accepted private enterprise program did not work out.

New Orleans is in the race for a national football league franchise.

McKeithen said NFL officials bonding and taxing powers.

Hospital At Pineville Is Given Grant

PINEVILLE (Special) — The Huey P. Long Charity Hospital here was awarded a $950,000 Hill-Burton grant Friday for a construction project.

Hospital superintendent Milton Roberts said the money will partially pay for a modernization of the 288-bed general hospital. Total cost of the project will be $2,055,600.

Each floor of the three-story hospital will be renovated, and the entire building air-conditioned. In addition, the admitting room, long a target of critical grand jury reports, will be improved.

Two stories will be added to the 10 - year - old single story clinic building located behind the main hospital.

Roberts said work on the project will begin in August or September.

Notification of the grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare came from Sen. Allen Ellender, Sen. Russell Long and Rep. Speedy O. Long.

Ruston Sets Power Plant Bond Election

RUSTON (Special) — A $3.5 million bond election for an expanded power plant generating capacity here has been set for Tuesday, June 28, from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the Courthouse and in City Hall.

The city received bonding approval from the State Bond and Tax Board that the 30 year indebtedness may be incurred. The Ruston City Council gave unanimous approval to the proposal in a special meeting.

The $3.5 million bonds are revenue bonds.

Mayor John Perritt said there will be no tax increase because the money for the bonds will be derived solely from revenue.

The expansion is in keeping pace with the rapid growth of the city.

A 27,500 Kilowatt plant is anticipated which would double the current generating power.

lean heavily toward a New Orleans franchise because "they like New Orleans."

The governor said he and others working on the stadium project are enthusiastic about an NFL franchise and feel sure New Orleans will be chosen "if we can satisfy them on a stadium."

Schiro said a stadium authority will be created in the legislation to be proposed next week and this authority will have bonding and taxing powers.

Equalization Suit To Go To Higher Court

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Victor Bussie, president of the state AFL-CIO, said Friday an appeal to a higher court would probably be the next move in a suit to force equalization of tax assessments in Louisiana.

The labor leader said "my inclination at this time would be that an appeal will be taken to a higher federal court."

U.S. Dist. Judge E. Gordon

West dismissed the suit earlier this week. He said those who filed the suit had made no effort to enforce their rights in the state courts.

Bussie, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Johnston of New Orleans filed the suit. It named the Louisiana Tax Commission and its three members, chairman Leo Theriot, Mrs. Blanche Long and Mrs. Wilma Lockhart as defendants.

Judge West said the plaintiffs failed to show they could not get "a plain, speedy and efficient remedy" in Louisiana courts.

West said he was without authority to act until the Louisiana taxpayers had showed his court they could not find remedy in the state courts.

Board Studies
Conflicting
State Rules

COLFAX (Special) — A need for revision of conflicting state statutes dealing with the age requirements for school bus drivers was cited at the Grant Parish School Board meeting here.

C. C. Belgard, parish school superintendent, pointed out that the minimum age for school bus drivers is 18 and the maximum is 65, and that, by law, all school bus drivers must become members of the state retirement system.

But, Belgard noted, another statute provides that no school bus driver who is 50 or over is eligible for membership in the state retirement system if employed after he has reached 50. Belgard drew this date from an opinion supplied by John Hunter of the State Attorney General's office.

Board members decided that the best thing to do is to get more information before they act.

Swift Action On LSD

Three states have passed laws controlling use of the hallucinatory drug LSD. By this writing there may be more falling in line, but California, Nevada, and New Jersey now head the list.

Each of the state laws permits supervised use of LSD, but bans other uses, along with sales and possession. Governor Edmund G. Brown of California was correct when he, on signing the measure, said the odorless, tasteless, colorless drug "poses a growing threat to young thrill seekers unaware of the damage it can do." Even so, legislators almost killed the bill on grounds that making it illegal would only stimulate youthful use. A majority of the California legislature fortunately thought otherwise.

The fact that California and Nevada were the first to bar unauthorized use of LSD is significant: they annually rank one and two in national crime rates.

A lion's share of publicity goes to California for its wayward youth. Pill traffic is quite common in the metropolitan areas. According to the Los Angeles juvenile narcotics squad, "not a day goes by that we don't pick up kids sniffing glue or taking pills." Recently a 13-year-old Los Angeleno was found dead, a victim of drug overdose. Introduction of LSD only increased by one the various types of stimulants and depressants available to the youngsters.

Dr. Timothy Leary, the "Dr. Nut" of LSD promotion, reacted in typical fashion to the control laws, calling them "hysterical" and "unrealistic." He maintains that 10 per cent of college students are using LSD, and suggested that lawmakers take LSD firsthand to find out "why the young people... are willing to risk prison to expand their consciousness."

In Leary's eyes, it apparently would not be alarming if the 10 per cent climbed to ninety-five per cent. But there are fortunately more responsible voices in the land — and they're not all legislators.

A Harvard psychiatrist — Dr. Leary was dismissed from Harvard for unauthorized drug experiments — reports that in his files is the report of a student who took LSD and spent the whole day living the nightmare that he was only six inches tall. There are many other cases of extended hospital commitment after youngsters took the drug.

The LSD fad is part of the nationwide "youth revolt" which really takes in only a minority of the students. Those who participate are usually placed in three groups: the casually curious, the thrill-seekers, and the committed in-group that tries to introduce a mystic quality about it all.

Regulation and control will, of course, be difficult. But no one can say the states are holding back and letting the federal government do it all.

California, Nevada and New Jersey are to be commended for moving swiftly into a dangerous area. Currently federal law merely regulates LSD manufacture, but doesn't ban possession. The states are ahead by imposing a $1,000 fine or a year in jail for possession alone.

Fund-Raising Reform

President Johnson's request that Congress modernize laws concerning political campaign financing came as no surprise. It has been known for some time that the President was unhappy with the current set-up as spelled out in federal law. Now the question is, has he gone too far? If he has, it wouldn't be the first time.

The request comes at a time when a renowned Democrat and a close friend of Johnson, Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut, is fighting for his political reputation against two columnists who charge he diverted campaign contributions to his own wallet, and that he was an errand boy for a West German lobbyist. Dodd has filed a $5 million dollar libel suit against them. The pretrial preliminaries are being hashed out now. The senator has denied any wrongdoing and is working to speed up the hearings.

Since Johnson and Dodd are friends, it is doubtful the Presidential action was motivated by politics. Campaign law reform has been on the drawing boards for some time; changes of some sort should have wide bipartisan support.

One aspect of the case might have significance. At one of the Dodd testimonial dinners, from which the senator is alleged to have been given a total of $200,000, President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey were guests. Dodd claimed that the funds raised at that particular affair was an outright gift, which rendered them non-taxable. But in Johnson's and Humphrey's recollection, the dinner was billed as a campaign fund-raiser, aimed at stocking the senator's campaign not his personal treasury. Since the White House comment, Senator Dodd has diluted his claims a bit.

Under the Johnson proposal, a system would be set up whereby millions might get a $100 income tax reduction for political contributions: all candidates and all committees submitting candidates for federal office would be required to report every contribution and every expense item above $100; Senate and House members would be required to report on outside income, from speeches, legal fees, articles, or any sources other than from investments.

The new law would — and here it may be slightly off-track — go far behind the present statutes and apply to state and local elections as well as primaries. Johnson believes the exemption of primaries is now a major defect. The new plan would limit to $5,000 the total financing any candidate could receive from any single source. That will mean a lot of grass-roots contributions will be needed.

Congress will likely pass campaign reform soon. If so, it will cost the government perhaps $50 million in revenue the first year. The tax break for the giver will look good, however.

Reform on the national level sounds pretty good, but reform on the state and local level should be left to the individual state or subdivision.

Way To Win Friends

President Johnson's procedure in the matter of building an expensive home for Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey is a little remindful of one of the old Mutt and Jeff comic strips, except in the matter of application.

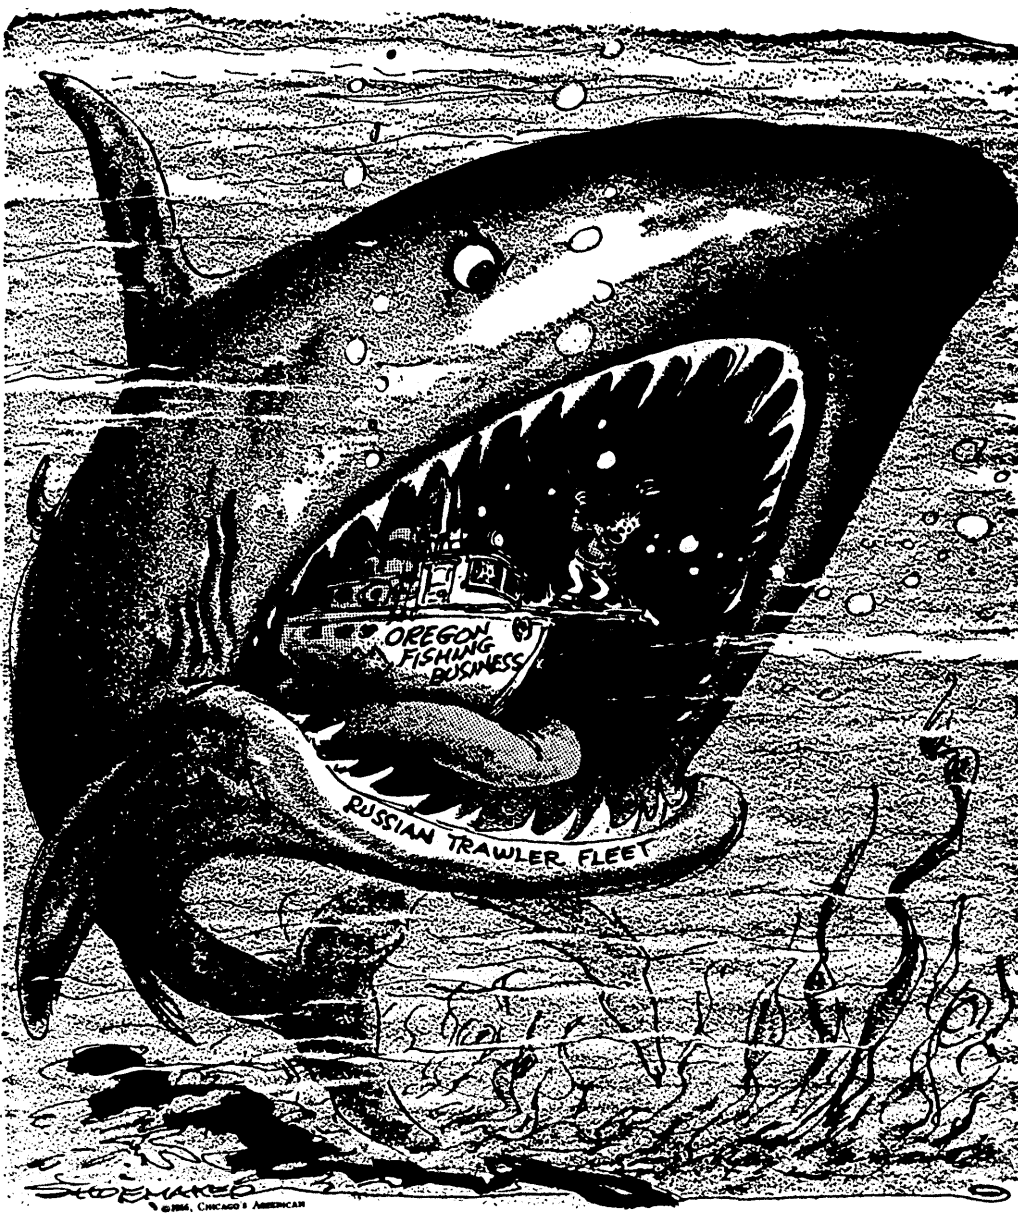

In that strip, Jeff was hitting himself on the head with a hammer. When Mutt asked him why, he replied, "Because it feels so good when I quit."

There was quite a commotion when Johnson and others talked of building a $750,000 home for the vice-president. Humphrey, who has a home in Minnesota and who is on the road much of the time, running errands for the President, said he didn't need a new home and didn't want one.

In a big burst of "economy," Johnson put off building the new home for the vice-president. Everybody felt so good about saving that much money that they forgot the country would have saved just as much if no one had talked about building the home in the first place — and this country has done without an official home for the vice-president for nearly 200 years.

And This Is No Fish Story!

Anti-Poverty 'Bungling' Hit Democratic Congressmen Are Reportedly Furious

DEMOCRATIC congressmen, increasingly worried over uncertain election prospects, are wrangling angrily with anti-poverty Director Sargent Shriver over spending projects in their districts.

Foremost among their irate complaints is failure to consult them, and the approving of projects politically harmful to the legislators.

This backstage furore presents the administration with a thorny problem. The new $1.7 billion anti-poverty authorization bill approved by the House Labor Committee is awaiting consideration by the full House.

A sizable Democratic defection could seriously affect the fate of the controversial Great Society measure. It is already under heavy attack by Republicans and Southerners.

SHRIVER is attempting to placate the aggrieved Democratic congressmen with assurances they will be consulted and their views given due consideration in acting on projects. It remains to be seen whether these belated conciliatory moves ease the sharply strained relations.

The lawmakers want outright veto power over all projects in their districts.

So far, Shriver has held out against that. He argues his compromise constitutes a veto in effect. Most of the congressmen don't see it that way, and some are talking of taking the seething dispute direct to President Johnson.

Also being discussed is raising the issue at a Democratic caucus for the purpose of directing the top party leaders to lay the matter before the President.

CASE IN POINT — Graphically illustrative of the explosive backstage situation is the stormy clash between Shriver and California's Democratic congressmen.

Sixteen of the 23 legislators met with him for more than an hour and a half and they minced no words in assailing his agency's selection and handling of projects in their districts. Denunciations ranged from "high handed" and "bungling" to "a mess" and "political liability."

"I would like to be a Republican running for Congress this year," barked one outraged legislator. "I would run on only one issue — opposition to the anti-poverty program and the sorry way it's being administered. I voted for this program and consider myself a friend. But the plain facts are it is a mess. I have learned that painfully from what has been happening in my district."

"I am the guy who gets the bricks when things go wrong but I never know about them until they go sour. I am never consulted on projects; I don't even know about them. On one a mayor finally told me about it after he tried to stop it and was getting nowhere. It probably would have been approved if he hadn't tipped me off and I began to raise hell."

"THAT IS WHAT I am demanding—a voice in determining projects before decisions are made, and not afterwards when the fat is in the fire. And I am going to get that say-so, or there may not be another anti-poverty program."

Other members of the California delegation were equally irate — and threatening.

"We are the ones who get the heat and not you," one told Shriver. "It is coming from all sides — Republicans, city and county officials, school people, labor, unemployed, social workers. They are up in arms about various complaints, and most of the time I don't know anything about them, although I get the blame. The working at cross purposes has got to stop. It is hurting us politically, and I don't have to tell you this is an election year."

BILL OF COMPLAINTS — Among a list of proposed anti-poverty projects hotly challenged by the Californians were the following:

$800,000 to the University of California for a police study.

$267,000 to the National Farm Workers Association, which has been waging a long and bitter strike.

$50,000 for a community action program that would be directed by an active supporter of a Republican opponent of the incumbent Democratic congressman.

Vigorously outspoken at the conference with Shriver were Representatives Jeffery Cohelan, Harlan Hagen and Lionel Van Deerlin. Cohelan, an eight-year veteran of the House and a member of the powerful Appropriations Committee, is having a tough primary fight against a young "new left" anti-Viet Nam opponent.

While refusing to yield to the legislators' demand for a veto over projects in their districts, Shriver offered to consult them before decisions are made.

"FROM NOW ON," the anti-poverty chief said, "I will see to it that you are kept fully informed about all projects originating in your areas. That will enable you to submit your views and comments, which will be given full consideration in acting on applications. To further this arrangement between us, I will take steps to establish closer liaison between you and the regional office in charge of proposals from your districts. I assure you we want to be helpful and cooperative, and I believe this is the most effective way to do it."

Election Will Make Johnson Take Stand

THE APPROACHING Congressional elections — and President Johnson's decline in popularity — are giving the White House some worried thoughts about the future. The Viet Nam war, it is recognized, has hurt Mr. Johnson badly, but there are other factors responsible for a slippage which can mean a substantial loss of seats in the next Congress.

The President must decide now what course to take to restore his prestige with the voters. And here he is the prisoner of his White House staff. On Viet Nam, for example, he has been urged to pay more attention to the "peaceniks" and to the Senatorial cabal led by J. William Fulbright, Wayne Morse, and Bobby Kennedy.

Mr. Johnson hears this regularly from Dr. Walt W. Rostow, formerly head of the State Department's Policy Planning staff and now the President's most influential adviser on foreign affairs. Dr. Rostow has been a consistent advocate of the theory that the United States cannot win the cold war and that the way to peace is by "an end to nationhood."

WHAT DR. ROSTOW hopes to prevent is the kind of action in Viet Nam that would bring the war to an end through the proper use of air power and a naval blockade. This is what most Americans want and as they see the drain of American material and the rising casualty rates, they turn against the President, though for different reasons from those of the "peaceniks."

According to military experts, gaged by Defense Secretary Robert Strange McNamara, sustained bombing of North Viet Nam's storage facilities, arms depots, and such industry as it has — plus a blockade to prevent Great Britain and other "allies" from shipping vital needed supplies to the Communists — would bring about the collapse of the enemy in from a month to six weeks.

If the President could present the American people with this kind of victory, he would pick up Congressional seats in November, not lose them. But he is being told that should he embark on this victorious and sound policy, he would antagonize the left-liberal coalition. Dr. Rostow, in particular, opposes everything but the present strategy of piecemeal escalation and inconclusive military action. This is in line with his views on eliminating the Strategic Air Command.

Johnson Is Assuming Role Of Big Brother

LYNDON JOHNSON, in a notable interview during the 1966 campaign, told a reporter that the people "have a childlike faith in me" and that, as a father with his children, he was doing his best to lead them.

As usual he was just a little bit off. Rather than a fatherly image, it is more apparent every day that what Lyndon Johnson is becoming to the people of this nation is Big Brother, in the fashion of George Orwell's prophetic novel, "1984."

Almost every day you can pick up a paper and find evidence of new ways in which this administration is moving toward the time when every man, woman and child in the United States will be just a number in the Great Planned Society computer. And along with the number will go a complete file of the person's worth, his weaknesses, his associations, his actions — everything that a police state could want to know.

IN THE PAST few days we have seen such evidence as a survey on "snooping" devices made by a national magazine. The survey turned up listening and looking devices that are small as postage stamps and disguised as everything from oil paintings to cuff links. It noted, particularly, that the Internal Revenue Service is a big user of such snooping devices.

Tax collectors have always been a favorite tool of tyranny, and there is increasing concern that the administration may be using today's revenue agents for political purposes. Certainly their use of such snooping devices as described in the survey puts them in a perfect position to exercise power far beyond the simple collection of bills.

ON TOP OF THAT is a report by Dr. Orville G. Brim Jr., a widely respected sociologist and president of the Russell

Dr. Rostow, in late 1960, returned from Moscow with a secret message from Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily Kuznetsov to President-elect Kennedy urging the United States to scrap its first-strike weapons — a policy which began going into effect in March of 1961 and which will be concluded by the very early 1970s.)

Critics of President Johnson are disturbed by the influence wielded by both Dr. Rostow and Defense Secretary McNamara. They argue that Mr. McNamara has already spent $273.5 billion, yet finds himself with a shortage of arms, bombs, and other material, and is compelled to "cannibalize" our forces in order to supply the fighting forces in Viet Nam. According to confirmed studies of House and Senate investigators, two-thirds of our divisions are not combat-ready today because of shortages of weapons and trained personnel.

In the days and months ahead, both Mr. Rostow and Mr. McNamara will become liabilities to the President. If he eases them out, there will be no agonized outcry from the liberal-left. If he continues to give them cover in his Administration, moderate and conservative Americans will grow even more disillusioned.

THE DECISION, therefore, has been removed from the realm of effective strategy and good government and thrown into the arena where Right versus Left contend. In military, as on fiscal matters, the President will be compelled to make a choice. The 1964 "consensus" that brought together industrialists and labor leaders, hawks and doves, free enterprisers and socialists, is no longer viable.

The President is a pragmatic man. Right, left, or center — when the question is victory or defeat at the polls — means little to him. He will choose on the basis of his best estimate of the political situation. The temptation will be great to offer the American people a victory in Viet Nam. But given what he hears from the Rostows and the McNamaras, he fears that a one-two punch may not work, and then he will be the target of the "peaceniks" and their friends.

But the choice will have to be made. Even now, Mr. Johnson is being criticized for trying to be all things to all men. Observers here agree that he must either fish or cut bait pretty soon.

Sage Foundation. He warns, flatly, that the day Big Brother may be closer than we think.

Dr. Brim cites the tie-in "between legal electronic surveillance, scientific research and government dossiers." He fears that within a couple of years a central pool of "snooper" information may be formed inside the government, bringing together for the use of the bureaucracy every scrap of information on every citizen gathered at any time and in any way.

As one example of how far fetched some of the data might be, school children in many communities recently were quizzed on everything from the bank accounts to the emotional lives of their parents.

SUCH DATA WOULD fit neatly into the master files of a master government.

It is ironic that Americans once reacted most forcefully to the Nazi and Communist systems of training children to spy on their parents. But as the government snoops deeper and deeper into everyone's lives, children have, in effect, been set to spy on their parents in this land — and there is scarcely any resistance.

Finally, in taking just the most recent examples, there is the published report that President Johnson has set up a special office to mobilize the nation (imposing job, wage, price and travel controls) whenever his wild spending brings us to the point where only such dictatorial methods are left to prevent bankruptcy or respond to some crisis or another.

In not a single action of this administration is there a shred of evidence that individual freedom is respected or even wanted. Quite the contrary. Big Brother is far more concerned with power.

Swift Action On LSD

Three states have passed laws controlling use of the hallucinatory drug LSD. By this writing there may be more falling in line, but California, Nevada, and New Jersey now head the list.

Each of the state laws permits supervised use of LSD, but bans other uses, along with sales and possession. Governor Edmund G. Brown of California was correct when he, on signing the measure, said the odorless, tasteless, colorless drug "poses a growing threat to young thrill seekers unaware of the damage it can do." Even so, legislators almost killed the bill on grounds that making it illegal would only stimulate youth use. A majority of the California legislature fortunately thought otherwise.

The fact that California and Nevada were the first to bar unauthorized use of LSD is significant: they annually rank one and two in national crime rates.

A lion's share of publicity goes to California for its wayward youth. Pill traffic is quite common in the metropolitan areas. According to the Los Angeles juvenile narcotics squad, "not a day goes by that we don't pick up kids sniffing glue or taking pills." Recently a 13-year-old Los Angelen was found dead, a victim of drug overdose. Introduction of LSD only increased by one the various types of stimulants and depressants available to the youngsters.

Dr. Timothy Leary, the "Dr. Nut" of LSD promotion, reacted in typical fashion to the control laws, calling them "hysterical" and "unrealistic." He maintains that 10 per cent of college students are using LSD, and suggested that lawmakers take LSD firsthand to find out "why the young people . . . are willing to risk prison to expand their consciousness."

In Leary's eyes, it apparently would not be alarming if the 10 per cent climbed to ninety-five per cent. But there are fortunately more responsible voices in the land — and they're not all legislators.

A Harvard psychiatrist — Dr. Leary was dismissed from Harvard for unauthorized drug experiments — reports that in his files is the report of a student who took LSD and spent the whole day living the nightmare that he was only six inches tall. There are many other cases of extended hospital commitment after youngsters took the drug.

The LSD fad is part of the nationwide "youth revolt" which really takes in only a minority of the students. Those who participate are usually placed in three groups: the casually curious, the thrill-seekers, and the committed in-group that tries to introduce a mystic quality about it all.

Regulation and control will, of course, be difficult. But no one can say the states are holding back and letting the federal government do it all.

California, Nevada and New Jersey are to be commended for moving swiftly into a dangerous area. Currently federal law merely regulates LSD manufacture, but doesn't ban possession. The states are ahead by imposing a $1,000 fine or a year in jail for possession alone.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

M'Namara Is Believed Aiming At Presidency

THE PENTAGON recently sent around a text of the commencement speech delivered by Defense Secretary McNamara a couple of weeks ago, when his younger daughter was graduated from Chatham College in Pittsburgh. That particular speech came just four days after the Secretary's tour de force before the American Society of Newspaper Editors at Montreal. Taken together, as Mary McGroarty recently remarked in the Washington Star, the two speeches have this town in a flap.

The New Republic sees a "real McNamara." Life Magazine sees a "new McNamara." And the National Review, which can't abide Johnson, Humphrey or anyone named Kennedy, sees a new candidate for President peering through the purple prose.

Up on the Hill, where McNamara spends much of his time, the troops are unimpressed. For the past five years, the Secretary has cultivated the glassy image of the human electron tube. When he arrives before a congressional committee, the wormhole is popularly supposed to feed on figures as if they were Grape-Nuts; when he gets sick, they call in a mechanic from IBM. His heart doesn't beat; it ticks. And never mind a blood transfusion — just give him a change of oil.

WITH HIS SPEECHES of May 18 and May 22, the McNamara image has had to be revised.

In the first of these, to the editors, he harvested some headlines with his proposal that "every young person in the United States give two years of service to his country — whether in one of the military services, in the Peace Corps, or in some other volunteer developmental work at home or abroad." This was the least important part of the speech.

Of far greater interest were the passages in which McNamara brooded about the nature of war and the necessity for peace. He made the point — and he made it eloquently — that national security embodies far more than a weapons system. In the mid-twentieth century, in his view, the "primary ingredient of permanent peace" is not to be found in military hardware; it lies rather in the improvement of relationships among the nations that have achieved a sense of well-being and the nations that have not. Violence and economic backwardness go together; and characteristically, he had figures to prove it.

THE ROLE OF THE United States as McNamara developed his theme, is not to serve as "global gendarme," under some assumed mandate to police the world. Our role must be precisely this: "To help provide security to those developing nations which genuinely need and request our help, and which demonstrate they are willing and able to help themselves."

But it was at the very end of his Montreal speech that the old computer turned into the new philosopher. He wondered aloud if the quarreling nations of this century ever could achieve mutual trust. It depended, he thought, on the nature of man: Is he a rational animal? If so, the goal could be reached; if not, there was little point in making the effort. He wound up with echoes of Edward Gibbon:

"All the evidence of history suggests that man is indeed a rational animal — but with a near infinite capacity for folly. His history seems largely a halting, but persistent effort to raise his reason above his animality. He draws blueprints for Utopia. But never quite gets it built. In the end, he plugs away obstinately with the only building material really ever at hand: his own part — comic, part-tragic, part-cursed, but part-glorious nature."

The 1964 "consensus" that brought together industrialists and labor leaders, hawks and doves, free enterprisers and socialists, is no longer viable.

The President is a pragmatic man. Right, left, or center — when the question is victory or defeat at the polls — means little to him. He will choose on the basis of his best estimate of the political situation. The temptation will be great to offer the American people a victory in Viet Nam. But given what he hears from the Rostows and the McNamaras, he fears that a one-two punch may not work, and then he will be the target of the "peaceniks" and their friends.

But the choice will have to be made. Even now, Mr. Johnson is being criticized for trying to be all things to all men. Observers here agree that he must either fish or cut bait pretty soon.

Sage Foundation. He warns, flatly, that the day of Big Brother may be closer than we think.

Dr. Brim cites the tie-in "between legal electronic surveillance, scientific research and government dossiers." He fears that within a couple of years a central pool of "snooper" information may be formed inside the government, bringing together for the use of the bureaucrats every scrap of information on every citizen gathered at any time and in any way.

As one example of how far fetched some of the data might be, school children in many communities recently were quizzed on everything from the bank accounts to the emotional lives of their parents.

SUCH DATA WOULD fit neatly into the master files of a master government.

It is ironic that Americans once reacted most forcefully to the Nazi and Communist systems of training children to spy on their parents. But as the government snoops deeper and deeper into everyone's lives, children have, in effect, been set to spy on their parents in this land — and there is scarcely any resistance.

Finally, in taking just the most recent examples, there is the published report that President Johnson has set up a special office to mobilize the nation (imposing job, wage, price and travel controls) whenever his wild spending brings us to the point where only such dictatorial methods are left to prevent bankruptcy or respond to some crisis or another.

In not a single action of this administration is there a shred of evidence that individual freedom is respected or even wanted. Quite the contrary. Big Brother is far more concerned with power.

Four Items On Planning Agenda Here

Four items of business are scheduled for the Monday night meeting of the Monroe-Ouachita Regional Planning Commission, but no public hearing has been set for the meeting.

The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the city planning commission office of Monroe City Hall, President Cotham Haddad will preside.

The tentative agenda includes a request for Gibson's Subdivision; for the planning approvals of Messiah Lutheran Church on Rimes Drive and for the Presbyterian Student Union, 409 College Ave.; and a preliminary hearing in an effort to rezone a portion of Erin Park Subdivision from R-2 (multiple family residence) district to B-2 (neighborhood business) district.

The Messiah Lutheran Church site plan includes a proposal to start immediately on the construction of a parsonage on the property, according to George W. Parsons, planning director and advisor to the planning commission.

Seat Belts Proven As Top Insurance

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am writing this letter in thankfulness. About a week ago, my husband was in an auto crash. All he got was a bump on the chin and a few scratches because he was wearing his seat belt. Two people in the other car who smashed into him were killed. Neither one of them had a seat belt on. I hope you will relay this to your readers. — Mrs. D.

Comment: I have mentioned seat belts as life savers and good accident insurance quite often. But not lately. Therefore, your note is a good reason for mentioning it again.

During 1965, seat-belt-equipped cars increased by at least 50 per cent. One reason for this is that about 30 states have passed laws requiring such equipment in new cars. But as I've said, just having the belts installed is not enough. Using them is what matters. Always. Even though you're just going around the block to pick up some groceries, click on your belt.

People have the mistaken notion that the potential danger on the road is during long trips far from home. For that reason, according to one recent survey, only 44 per cent always use the belts during the local travel and 67 per cent on long trips. Yet, most accidents (80 per cent) happen within a 25-mile radius of home and at apparently safe speeds of 40 miles per hour.

Make this resolution: Buckle up before you turn the ignition key. This is cheaper than the life-saving premium you can get at any hospital or doctor's office. Snuggle up to your belt and it will act like protective armor.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In the year 1947 I accidentally swallowed a fish bone. When the doctor examined my throat he found a bad case of what he called ulcerated tonsils.

Unaware of them, for years I had been complaining of tired-

Clarification On Story Cited

In a story in Friday's Monroe Morning World dealing with action by the Monroe Board of Adjustment, the ownerships of two businesses involved were incorrectly or not clearly listed.

The two businesses sought permission to erect canopies in front of their establishments which was granted by the board.

The story did not distinguish clearly between the two ownerships. It should have read that those applying for the permission which was granted were E. P. Rogers, owner of the Rogers Amoco Service Station, 1615 Jackson Street, and Hubert Perry and Bill Forbato, owners of BO Equipment and Supply Co., Inc., 600 Winnsboro Road.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In the year 1947 I accidentally swallowed a fish bone. When the doctor examined my throat he found a bad case of what he called ulcerated tonsils.

Unaware of them, for years I had been complaining of tiredness, weakness in my legs and knees and throbbing sensations. So I had them taken out. My strength came back and all went well until the fall of 1960 when I got tired again and had all the other symptoms I complained about first. He examined my throat and said that they hadn't grown back in. Three other doctors I went to after that said that my symptoms were not due to my tonsils.

Yet, my symptoms are the same as they were. I have reason to believe that my tonsils have grown back in again. I have heard that tonsil stumps grow back. When only the top is clipped off the roots remain. I am now 65 and I figure that the doctors won't think of removing my tonsils because of my age. Hence they are giving me the run around. All they do is examine me, say my tonsils are out, and give me a prescription to help my nerves.

Still, I have every reason to believe it's my tonsils again, in spite of what they tell me. Do you think it would be wise to take an X-ray of my throat to examine my tonsil stumps? — Mr. S.

Comment: I reprint your letter in entirety because it may help other readers who have a similar fixation elsewhere. For example, those who believe they have heart disease even though their doctors say they haven't. For those who have an abdominal discomfort due to functional reasons only, who keep thinking they have an ulcer. For those, like yourself, who won't believe their doctors.

I suggest that the sooner you find a doctor you will believe, the happier you will be. And please forget about stumps and X-rays, too.

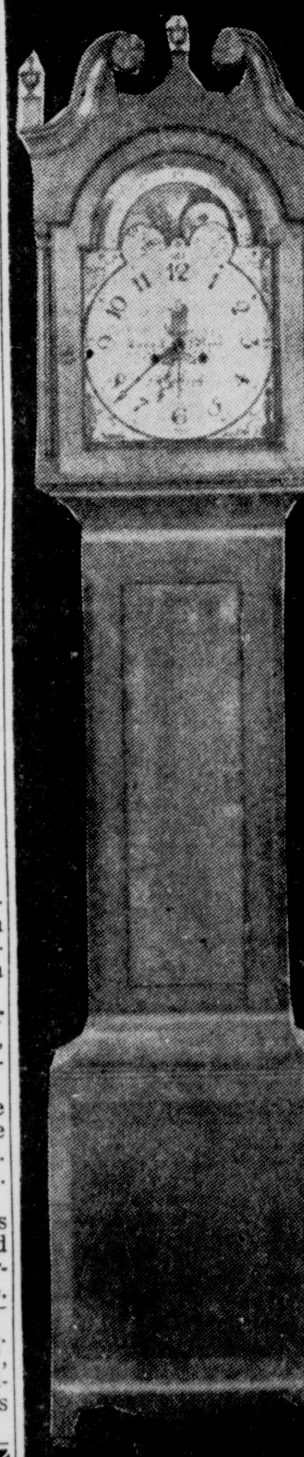

Dr. Steincrohn is sorry he cannot answer personal mail, but all questions of general interest are answered in this column.

If you have a question you want answered, write or call "Mr. Editor, Tell Me, Please" at the Morning World and News-Star. We'll be glad to get the information and pass it on to you each Saturday in this column.

What school sponsors the Esquires Club? What are the functions and purposes of it?
 Officials report that no school sponsors the group, and that technically it is not a club in the sense of formal organization. The best description offered was that of a social group of youngsters, made up of students from all the local and some area high schools, as well as some of the colleges, who hold parties together. It has no adult leadership or direction. The group received unfavorable publicity recently when a dance it sponsored threatened to become what deputies called the "biggest teenage riot Ouachita Parish ever had."

Is there any kind of summer work that 15 and 16-year-old boys can do? Will the city of Monroe use any during the summer?
 The City of Monroe already has hired around 100 such youngsters for jobs as swimming pool life guards, for other recreation department jobs, for grasscutting, or insecticide fogging, etc. Another 100 applications are on file. So the city's summer employment picture is filled. The Ouachita Police Jury also hires a number of young people for the summer, principally in the road department. However, they must be 18. With parental consent, some have been hired at age 17, but never at lesser ages.

Why is the secretary of the Ouachita Police Jury, who is not an elected official, permitted to remain in an executive or closed-door session, and visitors with the jury are not permitted to stay? Does anyone other than elected officials remain in the school board closed-door or executive sessions?
 Officials say that the police jury secretary, as operator of the police jury office and keeper of its records remains for consultation with the jurors. On most occasions, they say, the jury's legal advisor, from the District Attorney's Office, also remains in the executive sessions, and frequently so does the parish engineer for consultation. As for the parish school board's closed-door sessions, the systems superintendent remains in those for advice and consultation.

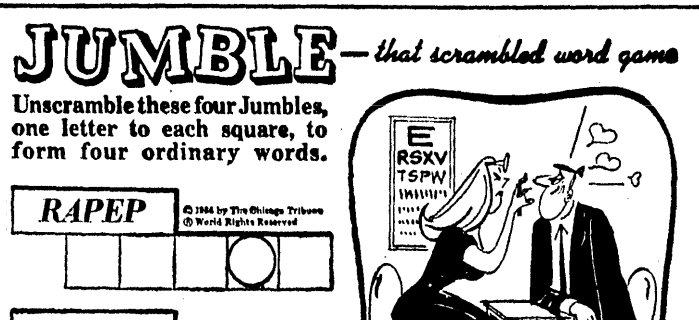

Which company or firm was awarded the contract bid on printing the litter bags for the Ouachita Police Jury and how many bags were printed? Was the $800 the cost of the bags and the printing, or just the printing alone? If so, were the bags given by the state at no cost? Where were the litter bags purchased?
 The police jury's contract for the litter bags amounted to $898.87, was entirely with the Bancroft Paper Company, on a bid basis and was for the bags and the printing of them together. The arrangement was approved by the purchasing committee and by the entire police jury. Three companies were contacted for quotations on the job. The number of bags amounted to 50,000. A "small number" of bags could have been obtained free from the state, jury officials say, but the committee's wish was exclusively for promotion of beautification in Ouachita Parish and solely for a Ouachita message on the bags. Ouachita was the only parish in the state to initiate such a program.

Is it permissible for a classified civil service employee to work in an unclassified position while on annual leave?
 We are advised that civil service workers may do as they please while on annual leave — except that they can in no way take any job or do anything which is considered contrary to the political activities stipulations. This is assuming that the work is not detrimental to either the person or the position which he, or she, holds.

What is the Baseball Triple Crown won by Mickey Mantle?
 That was the championship for batting, home runs and runs-batted-in. It was in 1956, with Mantle hitting 52 home runs, ending up with a batting average of .353, and 130 runs batted-in. Incidentally, he has another record — 18 World Series homers.

Last week you gave some information about Man'O War, the racing horse. Is he still alive?
 No, Man'O War died Nov. 1, 1947. Incidentally, the only horse to defeat him in a race was named "Upset."

If a disabled person accepts a settlement from the insurance company, will he lose his social security payments? The couple has a child.
 Social Security officials said if you are under 62 and are getting Social Security benefits for a disability that began after June 1, 1965, your payments will be reduced for any month in which you also receive compensation. If your disability began prior to June 1, 1965, there would be no reduction in Social Security Disability Benefits.

ELECT
DON GLASSCOCK
 Your independent and uncontrolled candidate for City Marshal of Wards 3 and 10.
 I feel there has been entirely too much demanding, ordering and warnings from our local Police Chief, James C. Kelly, Jr., without showing any courtesy.
 A very good example of this was printed on page 1C, June 2, 1966 of the Morning World paper. If I am given the opportunity to work for you as your City Marshal, I will first recognize that you are human beings and perform the duties of the Marshal with fairness to all people, and above all with courtesy.

Jay Eppinette Is 'Athlete Of The Year'

Versatile Neville Ace Cops Jaycees' Award

Jay Eppinette, a versatile athlete who makes outstanding achievements look easy, was named "Athlete of the Year" for the Twin Cities Friday night at the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce's All-Sports Banquet held at the Paragon Club.

Neville athletic director Bill Ruple was guest speaker for the occasion.

The naming of Eppinette as winner of the coveted trophy marked the sixth year in the 10-year history of the award that a Neville athlete has been the recipient.

Last year's winner was little Wally Rugg of Ouachita who became the third Lion star to capture the title. Other Ouachita athletes honored were Dickie Crowe in 1957 — the first year of the award — and Eddie McGowan the following year.

In the third year of the presentation, 1959, West Monroe's Jerry Stovall won the big trophy but since then Neville has completely dominated the honor. Neville men were honored for five straight years before Rugg broke the string last year.

The first Tiger "Athlete of the Year" was jolting Joe Cagle, still regarded by many as one of the finest all-around performers in Twin City history. Capping a fine career in 1960, Cagle had been an all-state halfback on Neville's undefeated championship team, held the national javelin crown, and participated in baseball, golf and tennis while at NHS.

Following Cagle were Neal Gunn, Don Bryant, Jimmy Howard and Gary Pappas — all speed merchants who starred in either football or track or both.

Although several of the past winners have been standouts in basketball as well as other sports, Eppinette is actually the first to be named primarily for his basketball abilities.

Eppinette is the lone athlete named to two All-Twin City teams this year, basketball and baseball, but even so it is still largely for his cage performance that he has become known as a clutch athlete.

After compiling a 15 point scoring average last year as a junior, Jay was expected to be one of the state's top men this year. He disappointed nobody, but his job proved much more difficult due to illness.

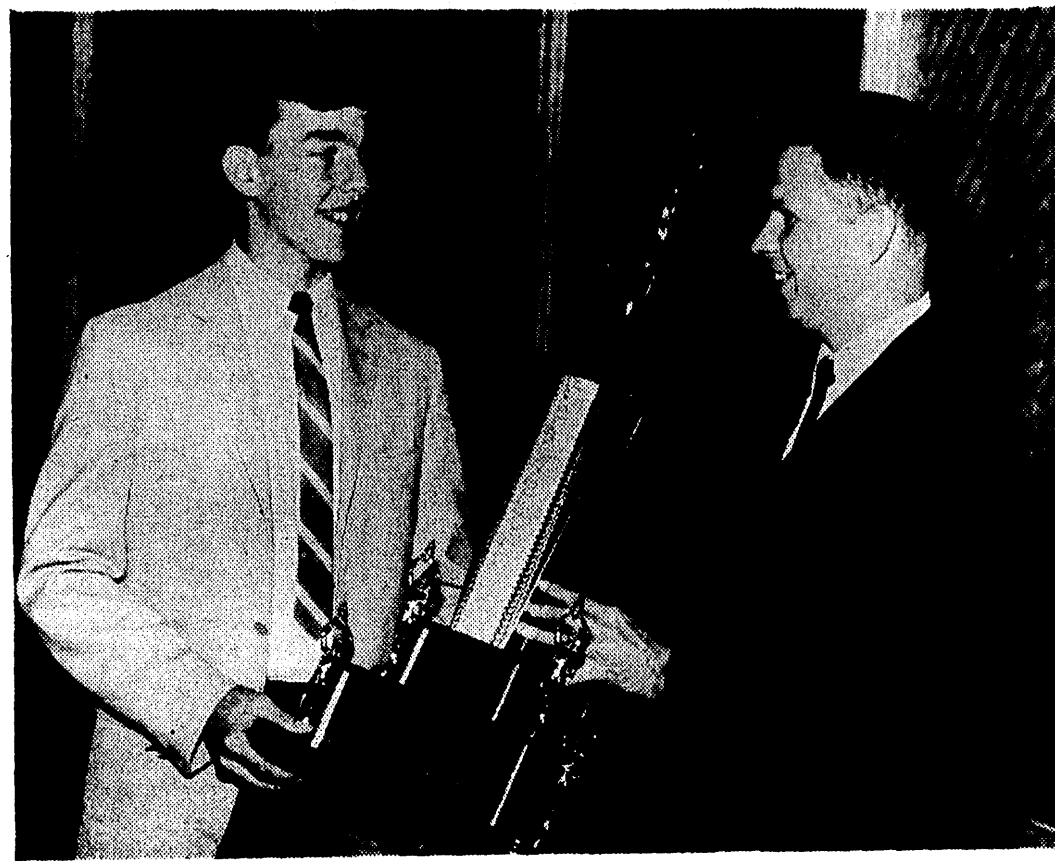

Operated on for a knee injury before the 1965-66 season began, Eppinette nevertheless was ready when the season opened. He got off to a good start but then came down with mononucleosis and it appeared for a while that he might miss the second half of the campaign.

However, the smooth 6'2" cager refused to smooth it out. He came back with some inspiring efforts. He finished with a 17.4 scoring average and grabbed 8.6 rebounds per game.

His pilot at Neville, Benny Hollis, summed up Eppinette's greatest contribution to the club when he said "Jay is possibly the finest leader I've ever seen for a high school boy."

Hollis said he felt Eppinette is "unlimited potential" and is one of the most talented players to ever perform at Neville. Eppinette was selected on the I-A.A.A. All-District team and received All-State recognition.

He has signed a basketball scholarship with Northeast. All prep athletes who were named to All-Twin City teams during the recent school year were guests at the Jaycees' banquet.

Home Runs Push Bucs To Win Over Houston

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Consecutive home runs by Jim Pagliaroni and Bill Mazeroski helped the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

The victory was the fourth for the unbeaten rookie southpaw who scattered nine hits.

Celts, Hawks Will Play In Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — The World champion Boston Celtics will meet the St. Louis Hawks in the Rapids Parish Coliseum in Alexandria on October 6.

The Celtics, who defeated Los Angeles for their eighth straight NBA title this past season, will be playing under rookie coach Bill Russell this coming season.

The Hawks finished last season, winding up third in the Western Division race.

In the playoffs, coach Richie Guerin's young crew defeated the Baltimore Bullets in four straight games before bowing out of the playoffs to the Lakers by a 4-3 margin in the best of seven series.

Orders for tickets are now being accepted for the first NBA game ever staged in the Central Louisiana area of the state.

Order requests should be mailed to Pro Basketball, 6 Carl Street, Alexandria. Ticket prices are $3.50 for courtside seats, $3 for reserved seats, $2 for general admission, and $1.50 for high school students. A twenty-five cent handling charge should be included with all orders.

'Wasn't Money' Reports Terrell

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, said Friday money was not the reason he withdrew from a fight with Cassius Clay originally scheduled last March 29 in Chicago.

"The real reason is because I had to sign an agreement that the Clay group would handle all my future fights," Terrell said in a television (KYW-TV) interview.

"Money had nothing to do with it," he said. "At the time the bout was cancelled, it was reported that the action was taken because of unacceptable financial arrangements."

Terrell is scheduled to meet WBA's second-ranked Doug Jones in a title fight June 28 in Houston, Tex.

Terrell said he still would like to fight Clay.

"But there won't be any agreements made about Clay's group handling my future fights," he added.

Robinson Puts Orioles By Athletics

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson, back in the starting lineup after a brief rest, smacked a two-run homer in the fifth inning and led Baltimore to a 3-2 victory over Kansas City Friday night.

Robinson, who had played only two innings in the last four games while nursing injuries, hit a 3-2 pitch from loser Jim (Catfish) Hunter into the right field bleachers for his 11th homer of the season.

The homer scored Luis Aparicio, who opened the inning with a double. Aparicio had three hits in his first four trips, giving him eight in his last 10 at bats.

Jim Palmer won his fifth decision while allowing five hits and striking out eight. Ken Harrelson's homer, after a walk to Dick Green, scored two runs for the A's in the second.

Palmer pitched out of a tight spot in the eighth after Bert Campaneris tripled with one out as left fielder Curt Blefary tried to make a shoestring catch.

The Oriole pitcher struck out Larry Stahl for the third time and then retired Mike Hershberger on an infield grounder.

Baltimore scored its first run in the second on a single by Boog Powell, walked by Blefary and Andy Etchebarren's sacrifice fly.

ST. PAUL — MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Fred Whitfield drove in three runs with three singles and a three-run homer and reliever Dick Radatz choked off a late Minnesota rally as the Cleveland Indians edged the Twins 6-5 Friday night.

Radatz got the last out in the eighth inning after Minnesota scored once off Steve Hargan, who replaced Indian starter Luis Tiant in the fourth.

Whitfield homered in the seventh inning after Leon Wagner and Rocky Colavito singled. The 360-foot drive over the right fence was Whitfield's fourth straight hit off Minnesota starter Jim (Mule) Grant and erased a 4-3 Twins' lead.

Whitfield, who had a pregame batting average of .216, also singled in runs in the first and third innings. Jim Landis hit a leadoff homer in the third for another Indian tally.

Zoilo Versalles slammed a two-run homer, his fourth, off Tiant in the third. Tony Oliva drilled his 12th homer in the fourth for a 3-3 tie. A walk and two singles produced another run and a 4-3 lead which chased Tiant.

Yanks Pound Red Sox For 15-5 Decision

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Al Downing and Tom Tresh drove in five runs each as the New York Yankees unloaded a 17-hit barrage Friday night in a 15-5 romp over the Boston Red Sox.

Downing rapped a bases-loaded single in the Yankees' five-run fourth inning and a bases-loaded triple in the six-run seventh while breezing by his sixth straight victory after losing his first three decisions.

Tresh drove in two runs with a single in the fourth, two more with his third homer in the sixth and another with a double in the seventh.

Hector Lopez hit his first homer and a pair of doubles for three RBI, while Elston Howard had three singles and Cleto Boyer a pair of triples.

Boyer was walked intentionally in the fourth and seventh, filling the bases for Downing in the fourth and seventh.

Hector Lopez hit his first homer and a pair of doubles for three RBI, while Elston Howard had three singles and Cleto Boyer a pair of triples.

The Yankee blitz stunned a crowd of 27,196, the largest turnout at Fenway Park since a New York game drew 31,019 June 9, 1964.

Don Pavletich Keys 5-Run Reds' Spree

CINCINNATI (AP) — Don Pavletich belted a two-run double in the eighth inning, keying a five-run rally that boosted Cincinnati past the Chicago Cubs 5-6 Friday night.

The Reds' victory broke their losing streak at six and extended the Cubs' losing string to four.

Four of the Reds' runs in the eighth were unearned, the result of a fumble by pitcher Dick Ellsworth on Vada Pinson's bouncer. The miscue sent Tommy Helms, who led off the inning with a double, to third, from where he scored on an infield single by Tony Perez.

Perez later scored on a single by Leo Cardenas, which brought Chuck Estrada in for Ellsworth. Estrada got the second out, but Pavletich doubled to left-center field for two runs, putting the Reds ahead 7-6.

Pitcher Joe Nuxhall climaxed the rally by singling in pinch runner Dick Simpson.

The Cubs scored all of their runs in the sixth inning, two on Billy Williams' single, two on a double by Ernie Banks and the last two on Byron Browne's homer.

Deron Johnson scored after doubling for the Reds in the third and singled across a run in the fourth. Pavletich singled home Johnson and can across himself on Tommy Harper's double.

Robinson Puts Orioles By Athletics

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson, back in the starting line-up after a brief rest, smacked a two-run homer in the fifth inning and led Baltimore to a 3-2 victory over Kansas City Friday night.

Robinson, who had played only two innings in the last four games while nursing injuries, hit a 3-2 pitch from loser Jim (Catfish) Hunter into the right field bleachers for his 11th homer of the season.

The homer scored Luis Aparicio, who opened the inning with a double. Aparicio had three hits in his first four trips, giving him eight in his last 10 at bats.

Jim Palmer won his fifth decision while allowing five hits and striking out eight. Ken Harrelson's homer, after a walk to Dick Green, scored two runs for the A's in the second.

Palmer pitched out of a tight spot in the eighth after Bert Campaneris tripled with one out and left fielder Curt Blefary tried to make a shoestring catch.

The Orioles struck out Larry Stahl for the third time and then retired Mike Hershberger on an infield grounder.

Baltimore scored its first run in the second on a single by Boog Powell, a double by Blefary and Andy Etchebarren's sacrifice fly.

Littler, Yancey Tied For Memphis Lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Gene Littler tied Bert Yancey for the second round lead in the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament Friday, while defending champion Jack Nicklaus rallied with a six-under-par 64 to move back into contention.

Littler's second straight 66 and Yancey's 69 gave them 36-hole totals of 132, a two-round record low for the Memphis Open. They were eight under par at the halfway mark.

Jack Rule was in second place with 135, followed by Bruce Devlin, Johnny Pott, Bob Goalby, Tommy Jacobs, Wright Garrett, Homero Blancas, Bob Charles and Nicklaus with 136s.

In the opening round Nicklaus had a two-over-par 72, but he became dead on the greens Friday and posted a 64. He shot an eagle 3 on the 16th and birdied No. 18.

Willie Horton Clouts Homer In Tiger Win

ANAHEIM (AP) — Willie Horton clouted a seventh-inning homer, his first hit in his last 30 at bats, as Detroit handed the California Angels their fourth straight defeat 10-1 Friday night.

Horton's blast over the center field fence was his fourth of the year and gave Hank Aguirre, 1-3, the victory in a duel with left-hander Marcelino Lopez 3-5. Aguirre gave up just four hits in seven innings but had to leave the game when he developed a blister on his pitching hand. Larry Sherry finished up, allowing only one more hit.

Lopez went the distance, scattering seven hits.

The Angels had their leadoff batters on base in each of the first four innings and had two men on in the first and fifth. But Aguirre successfully put down all of the threats.

Horton's homer was his first hit since May 17 when he slugged a homer against the New York Yankees.

Bo Belinsky

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bo Belinsky says he isn't trying to tell Manager Gene Mauch and General Manager John Quinn how to run the Philadelphia Phillies, but if they can't pitch him regularly he wants to be traded or sent to the minors.

The colorful pitcher said he has talked with both Quinn and Mauch about his desires.

"No, I haven't any comment," said Quinn, who added, "It's not worth dignifying. It's his (Belinsky's) prerogative to make any statement he wants."

Mauch would say only, "All I know is that every time I give him the ball, he goes out there and tries to do his best."

Belinsky, who has voiced the "pitch me or trade me" complaint in the past, says his only beef against the Phillies is the fact he's not getting a chance to pitch regularly.

"I'm not looking for publicity," he emphasized.

Kauai King Trying For Triple Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Kauai King, with only 1 1/2 miles of Aqueduct's fast racing strip and 10 other 3-year-olds remaining between him and the coveted Triple Crown, was made the outstanding favorite Friday to capture the 98th running of the Belmont Stakes Saturday.

Only eight horses in the long history of the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont have won all three of the classics. Kauai King is two-thirds of the way and is 4-5, with a strong possibility of shorter odds by post time, he'll be No. 9 and the first since Citation in 1948.

Post time is 5:15 p.m. EDT. The race will be televised nationally by CBS from 3:30 p.m., CST.

Also at stake will be the richest Belmont purse ever. With 11 starters, twice as many as were expected after Kauai King whipped the best of the division in the Derby and Preakness, the Belmont will be worth $161,450.

The winner will get $117,700. Kauai King, with a record of light victories and one second in 10 starts this year, already has a 1966 bank account of $369,027. The Maryland-bred son of Native Dancer is by far the richest horse in the race.

There was one surprise as entries were made Friday morning. Trainer Frank Whiteley called from Delaware Park with the entry of Raymond Guest's Jolly Jet.

No rider was listed but Nick Shuk has been astride the son of Jet Action in all three of his races. Jolly Jet, who did not race as a 2-year-old, is unbeaten at distances from six furlongs to 1 1/2 miles. But the track handicapper lost no time in making him an outsider in the pre-race odds.

Kauai King, who wound up his training by blowing out three eighths of a mile in 36 seconds Friday morning, drew No. 6 post position.

"That's fine," said owner Michael Ford after disclosing that he had caught the King in 36.5.

"If we are beaten we'll have no excuse," Ford added. "He has come up to the race in perfect condition—both physically and temperamentally."

Don Brumfield, who has ridden the $42,000 yearling purchase in his last 10 races, again will be in the saddle.

Others entered, with post positions, were: 1. Rehabilitate; 2. Jolly Jet; 3. Fleet Shoe; 4. Highest Honors; 5. Amberoid; 7. Past Count; 8. Stupendous; 9. Advocate; 10. Buffle; and 11. Valam.

Kauai King stands out so much in pre-race calculations that the second choice, Stupendous, was rated no better than 4-1. Stupendous has tried Kauai King for size three times in the last six weeks and failed each time.

The Eddie Neely-trained son of Bold Ruler was second in Bowie's Gold Cup, beaten three lengths; fourth in the Kentucky Derby, beaten 1 1/4 lengths, and runner-up in the Preakness, 1 1/4 lengths back. He'll be ridden by Braulio Baeza, who won the Belmont with lightly regarded Sherluck in 1961 and with Cha-teaugay in 1963.

Four other members of the Belmont field found Kauai King too tough to handle in either the Derby or Preakness or both. They are Amberoid, a come-from-behind performer who turned in a sizzling six-furlong workout Wednesday; Fleet Shoe from California; the evenly-gaited Rehabilitate and Advocate, runner-up in the Derby but 11 lengths back in the Preakness.

The track oddsmaker pegged Amberoid as the 8-1 third choice with the swift running Highest Honors next in line at 12-1. He rated the others no better than 15-1, including Buffle, trained by 85-year-old Max Hirsch who has saddled four Belmont winners.

With a prospect of a fast track, the expected crowd of some 60,000 may well see the swiftest Belmont since it was switched to Aqueduct from Belmont Park

New York Mets KO Drysdale, Fisher Halts Los Angeles, 6-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Fisher pitched a three-hitter for his first victory ever against Los Angeles as the New York Mets knocked out Don Drysdale and whipped the Dodgers 6-2 Friday night.

The victory, which snapped a three-game losing streak, was only the third for the Mets over Drysdale in 2 1/2 lifetime decisions.

Fisher, who had lost seven times to the Dodgers, yielded only a single to Lou Johnson in the second inning, and a single to John Kennedy in the eighth before Wes Parker homered in the ninth.

The New York right-hander set down 20 straight hitters after Johnson's single and a two-base error by center fielder Cleon Jones helped the Dodgers score an unearned run in the second. Johnson scored on a fly ball by Wes Covington and Al Luplow.

Florida State Knocks State Out Of Play

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Defending champion Florida State got a three-hitter from Edie Howell to eliminate Mississippi State 7-0 Friday night and gain the final of the NCAA district 3 baseball tournament.

The Seminoles, who eliminated East Carolina 6-3 in the afternoon, meet North Carolina, unbeaten in the double elimination play, today.

North Carolina, which edged Mississippi State 5-4 Friday night, can win the championship with a victory in the afternoon. If FSU, beaten in its tourney opener, wins, a third game will be necessary at 7:30 p.m.

FSU was in danger against East Carolina, the Southern Conference champion, until the Seminoles scored three unearned runs in the ninth.

But Howell was in complete control against Mississippi State. He struck out 11, walked only one, and had a no-hitter until Del Unser singled with one out in the seventh. Howell now is 7-3 for the season.

Carly Sprague had two hits, including a triple, and drove in two runs for Florida State. Pete Sarron and Mike Martin also had two hits each for the Seminoles.

Behind 3-0 in its game with Mississippi State, North Carolina opened its seventh inning rally with a legitimate run—Danny Talbott singled and scored on Bob Bonczek's double.

Later, with the bases loaded, Charlie Thomas hit to Maroon first baseman Gary Washington, who bobbed the ball allowing another run to score. Washington then threw wild at home plate allowing what proved to be the winning run to score.

Littler, Yancey Tied For Memphis Lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Gene Littler tied Bert Yancey for the second round lead in the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament Friday, while defending champion Jack Nicklaus rallied with a six-under-par 64 to move back into contention.

Littler's second straight 66 and Yancey's 69 gave them 36-hole totals of 132, a two-round record for the Memphis Open. They were eight under par at the halfway mark.

Jack Rule was in second place with 135, followed by Bruce Devlin, Johnny Pott, Bob Goaly, Tommy Jacobs, Wright Garrett, Homero Blancas, Bob Charles and Nicklaus with 136s.

In the opening round Nicklaus had a two-over-par 72, but he became deadly on the greens Friday and posted a 64. He shot an eagle 3 on the 16th and birdied No. 18.

Nicklaus started slow last year but came on to win in a playoff over Johnny Pott.

Pott was two over par after the first round but shot a 6r Friday.

Tom Cassidy, with an opening 74, came back at 64 although he

Willie Horton Clouts Homer In Tiger Win

ANAHEIM (AP)—Willie Horton clouted a seventh-inning homer, his first hit in his last 30 at bats, as Detroit handed the California Angels their fourth straight defeat 1-0 Friday night.

Horton's blast over the center field fence was his fourth of the year and gave Hank Aguirre, 1-3, the victory in a duel with left-hander Marcelino Lopez 3-5.

Aguirre gave up just four hits in seven innings but had to leave the game when he developed a blister on his pitching hand. Larry Sherry finished up, allowing only one more hit.

Lopez went the distance, scattering seven hits.

The Angels had their leadoff batters on base in each of the first four innings and had two men on in the first and fifth. But Aguirre successfully put down all of the threats.

Horton's homer was his first hit since May 17 when he slugged a homer against the New York Yankees.

DETROIT (AP)—Bill Campbell, 1965 U.S. Amateur champion, came back Friday for his ninth British Amateur golf championship and said "This is one I would dearly love to win."

Campbell, of Huntington, W.Va., is one of 44 Americans in the field of 195 to compete over the 7,059 yards, par 36-35-71 Carnoustie links.

The championship starts Monday. Campbell was a 33-1 shot in the betting. Bill Hyndman III of Philadelphia, was a 25-1 shot.

Peter Townsend, 19-year-old English lad, is the favorite at 4-1, followed by defending champion Mike Bonallack of England at 6-1.

Campbell, now 43, said that "Playing in the British Amateur is one of the very rare things in life."

"I first played in it in 1949 and this time will be my ninth attempt to win it. I got to the final in 1954 but lost that one."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ted Williams, 19-year-old University of Kansas freshman, and Grelle, 29, of the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, Ore., last hooked up at two miles on the same track in the Coliseum 13.

Ryun won by inches and set an American record of 8:25.2. Grelle was given the same time.

They will aim at the world mile record of 3:53.6 held by Michel Jazy of France.

The promoters said George Young, veteran steeplechase runner from Casa Grande, Ariz., will compete in the mile and try to set a pace of about 2:56.0 for the first three-quarters, enhancing the chance of a record finish.

Grelle has run under four minutes 19 times in his career but has twice lost to Ryun — at 1,500 meters in 1964 and in the mile last year.

Others entered in the mile include Dave Bailey of Toronto, Can., and Tom Von Ruden of Oklahoma State.

The two finest pole vaulters in the world, Bob Seagren and John Pennel, both of the Southern California Striders, are entered, each aiming at the pending world record of 17 feet 5 1/2 inches which Seagren cleared at Fresno, Calif., last May 13.

Still another 17-0 vaulter, freshman Paul Wison of the University of Southern California, is also entered.

The 5,000-meter run drew a field that includes Gerry Lindgren of Washington State, who as a high school kid from Spokane, Wash., upset the Russians in the USSR-USA meet in the 10,000-meter run in the 1964 dual meet in this same Coliseum.

Featured in the 3,000-meter steeplechase is Gaston Roelants of Belgium, the world record holder and 1964 Olympic Games champion.

Bo Belinsky

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bo Belinsky says he isn't trying to tell Manager Gene Mauch and General Manager John Quinn how to run the Philadelphia Phillies, but if they can't pitch him regularly he wants to be traded or sent to the minors.

The colorful pitcher said he has talked with both Quinn and Mauch about his desires.

"No, I haven't any comment," said Quinn, who added, "It's not worth dignifying. It's his (Belinsky's) prerogative to make any statement he wants."

Mauch would say only, "All I know is that every time I give him the ball, he goes out there and tries to do his best."

Belinsky, who has voiced the "pitch me or trade me" complaint in the past, says his only beef against the Phillies is the fact he's not getting a chance to pitch regularly.

Campbell Shoots For Ninth Title In British Golf

Campbell, of Huntington, W.Va., is one of 44 Americans in the field of 195 to compete over the 7,059 yards, par 36-35-71 Carnoustie links.

The championship starts Monday. Campbell was a 33-1 shot in the betting. Bill Hyndman III of Philadelphia, was a 25-1 shot.

Nancy Richey Is Upset Victor In French Meet

PARIS (AP) — Nancy Richey, of Dallas, Tex., upset Australia's Margaret Smith with surprising ease, 6-1, 6-3, Friday and gained the final of the French tennis championships for the first time.

The 23-year-old Texan's final opponent will be England's Ann Haydon Jones, conqueror of Brazil's formidable Maria Bueno, 4-6, 6-6, 6-2, in another semifinal upset on the clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium.

It took Miss Richey, daughter of a Texas pro and co-ranked No. 1 in the United States, less than an hour to overcome the powerful Australian who is rated the world's No. 1 female player.

Miss Smith and Miss Bueno have dominated the women's tennis picture for years. The Australian has won the American, French and English (Wimbledon) titles twice each and has swept the Australian championship seven consecutive years.

The lithe, agile Brazilian is a three-time winner of the American and Wimbledon championships. Miss Smith defeated her Brazilian archrival in the Wimbledon final last year.

The United States got a berth in the men's doubles final when Australia's Tony Roche injured his left ankle in a fall in the fourth set and was forced to quit.

Roche and fellow Australian John Newcombe were leading Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 3-2, when Roche was hurt.

The Americans will meet Rumania's Ian Tiriac and Ilie Nastase, who ousted the Russian pair of Alex Metreveli and Alex Likatchev, 6-1, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Roche said "something went 'crack' when he fell."

He may have to default his Saturday championship singles match with Hungary's Istvan Gulay.

The only other time Miss Richey has reached a final in the world's four major championships — Australian, American, English and French — was in Australia last Jan. 30. Then she had to default to Miss Smith because of an injury to her left knee.

She wore an elastic brace on the knee in the semifinals here but moved nimbly about the court in a match fought mainly from the baselines.

Reds Owner Unhappy But Not Ready To Push Panic Button

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I'm not pushing the panic button and I don't plan any major changes."

Those were the words Friday from Cincinnati president and general manager William O. DeWitt as the Reds' latest losing streak reached six games. The sixth defeat was on Thursday when the Houston Astros scored eight runs in the 12th inning to win, 12-4, as 5,152 fans booed lustily.

The defeat left the Reds, tabbed in the pre-season Associated Press poll of baseball writers as favorites to win the National League pennant, four games under the .500 mark and 10 games behind first-place San Francisco.

"I'm unhappy, of course," said DeWitt, "but you don't push the panic button just because you're losing. There have been losing streaks before and there have been winning streaks."

"I don't plan any major changes and I don't have any major deals pending."

DeWitt left the ball park before Thursday night's debacle was over. Manager Don Heckner, saying only "I'm sick," also made a quick departure from Crosley Field.

The big obvious trouble, of course, has been lack of hitting and DeWitt said, "when fellows like (John) Edwards, (Deron) Johnson and (Pete) Rose don't hit you're in trouble. However, I think you'll find that when one fellow starts hitting they all do."

Is there anything beneath the surface? That is a question that can bring several types of comment.

One player says there is no dissension among the players but that the pitchers are unhappy because they aren't told in advance who is going to work.

Some of the grandstand managers also wonder whether Heckner's repeated shuffling of his lineup has caused uncertainty among the players. Some of the players will give you a private "yes" answer to that.

Heckner has used Gordy Coleman, Tony Perez, Don Pavlich and Johnson at first base. Rose started the season at third base with Johnson in the outfield and second. Since then, Rose has moved back to second, Helms has taken over third and Johnson is shuttled around.

All of the outfielders have been in various positions or on the bench.

The Reds haven't had a field captain for many years and one player expressed belief there might be a need for a team leader. He said Frank Robinson, traded to Baltimore in the off-season, more or less filled that job previously. DeWitt says, however, he considers Edwards to have been more the leader of the players.

"We all are wondering why it all happens at once," said a player. "It seems everything has gone to pieces."

There also was one "yes" answer as to whether there is a question of real leadership, either managerial or among the players.

DeWitt took exception to that, too. "If I wasn't satisfied with the leadership I'd do something about it and I have no plans along that line," he said.

Some of the players think Heckner, whom they like, might be better off if he'd get a little tougher with them.

But one thing is certain—the Crosley Field booing section is in full voice.

White Sox Top Solons On 3-Hitter

CHICAGO (AP) — Jack Lamabe scattered three hits for his second straight shutout as the Chicago White Sox trimmed Washington 8-0 Friday night.

Lamabe, who had never pitched a shutout in the major leagues prior to this season, followed up his one-hit victory over Boston last Monday by blanking the Senators for his third victory in four decisions.

The White Sox scored three runs in the second inning off Mike McCormick and routed the Washington southpaw during a four-run outburst in the fourth.

J. C. Martin paced the White Sox with two run-scoring singles and a sacrifice fly. Floyd Robinson drove in two runs with a single and double.

Rookie Lee Elia scored the first run of the game after tripling to right for his first extra base hit in the majors.

Gibson stymied the staggering Braves on two hits and had retired 14 men in a row going into the ninth. But after getting the first two outs, he gave up Hank Aaron's 18th homer and a single to Felipe Alou.

Hoerner then came on and fanned Mack Jones for the final out, saving Gibson's seventh victory against five defeats.

Curt Flood collected four hits in four at bats for St. Louis but was erased three times after singles when Orlando Cepeda hit into three double plays equaling a National League record.

Flood's fourth hit was a triple in the eighth inning, which drove in Tim McCarver who had walked. The Cardinals had taken a 2-1 lead in the seventh when Lou Brock singled, stole second, was sacrificed to third and scored on Jerry Buchek's sacrifice fly.

St. Louis' tying run came in the third inning when Julian Javier singled, stole second, went to third on Gibson's infield bouncer and raced home on Bob Tolan's sacrifice fly.

That run ended a scoreless streak of 23 innings for the Cardinals.

Nancy Richey Is Upset Victor In French Meet

PARIS (AP) — Nancy Richey, of Dallas, Tex., upset Australia's Margaret Smith with surprising ease, 6-1, 6-3, Friday and gained the final of the French tennis championships for the first time.

The 23-year-old Texan's final opponent will be England's Ann Haydon Jones, conqueror of Brazil's formidable Maria Bueno, 4-6, 8-6, 6-2, in another semifinal upset on the clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium.

It took Miss Richey, daughter of a Texas pro and co-ranked No. 1 in the United States, less than an hour to overcome the powerful Australian who is rated the world's No. 1 female player.

Miss Smith and Miss Bueno have dominated the women's tennis picture for years. The Australian has won the American, French and English (Wimbledon) titles twice each and has swept the Australian championship seven consecutive years.

The lithe, agile Brazilian is a three-time winner of the American and Wimbledon championships. Miss Smith defeated her Brazilian archrival in the Wimbledon final last year.

The United States got a berth in the men's doubles final when Australia's Tony Roche injured his left ankle in a fall in the fourth set and was forced to quit.

Roche and fellow Australian John Newcombe were leading Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 3-2, when Roche was hurt.

The Americans will meet Romania's Ian Tiriac and Lieke Nastase, who ousted the Russian pair of Alex Metreveli and Alex Likatchev, 6-1, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Roche said "something went 'crac'" when he fell.

He may have to default his Saturday championship singles match with Hungary's Istvan Gulay.

The only other time Miss Richey has reached a final in the world's four major championships — Australian, American, English and French — was in Australia last Jan. 30. Then she had to default to Miss Smith because of an injury to her left knee.

She wore an elastic brace on the knee in the semifinal here but moved nimbly about the court in a match fought mainly from the baselines.

Age Isn't Clemente Bugaboo But Lack Of Sleep Hampers

NEW YORK (AP) — Old age doesn't bother Roberto Clemente. Lack of sleep does.

"I'm getting old now," the 31-year-old Pittsburgh right-fielder said. "But I take good care of myself. The only thing I hope I do is sleep well."

The three-time National League batting champion didn't have any trouble sleeping in his first 21 years. Then the problem started.

"First, I had a sore back," Clemente explained. "Then I started getting real nervous. I had a nervous stomach. They told me, 'You got nothing. It's all in your head.' But then I started having trouble sleeping."

The problem has grown steadily worse. Take, for example, the past week.

"We came in from Houston last Sunday night," Clemente said during the Pirates' visit to New York. "We got to Pittsburgh at one o'clock in the morning, and I got to my home just before 2. I got to bed at 4."

"At 6:15 my sister - in - law called from New York. She had come in from Puerto Rico Sunday night, and she wanted to know how I was and why I wasn't playing."

"Then Monday night we went to sleep at 11:30. My 9-month-old son, Roberto Jr., was having trouble with his gums, and he started crying. We got back to bed at 5:30. Tuesday night we were up until 4:30 with the baby. Then I got up early and came to New York."

"Now we have another problem. We live in an apartment building, and they are doing some work in the basement. They start working at 7:45 and they turn on a compressor and bang, you're up."

"After I wake up once I can lay in bed and close my eyes, but I don't go to sleep."

How badly does the lack of sleep affect Clemente? The answer depends on whether you listen to Clemente or look at the record.

"It hurts 100 per cent," the Puerto Rican said. "When I sleep well, I feel happy getting up in the morning. But lately I feel bad. I guess it's the tension when you aren't doing good that hurts. You worry. You feel guilty."

Reds Owner Unhappy But Not Ready To Push Panic Button

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I'm not pushing the panic button and I don't plan any major changes."

Those were the words Friday from Cincinnati president and general manager William O. DeWitt as the Reds' latest losing streak reached six games. The sixth defeat was on Thursday when the Houston Astros scored eight runs in the 12th inning to win, 12-4, as 5,152 fans booed lustily.

The defeat left the Reds, tabbed in the pre-season Associated Press poll of baseball writers as favorites to win the National League pennant, four games under the .500 mark and 10 games behind first-place San Francisco.

"I'm unhappy, of course," said DeWitt. "but you don't push the panic button just because you're losing. There have been losing streaks before and there have been winning streaks."

"I don't plan any major changes and I don't have any major deals pending."

DeWitt left the ball park before Thursday night's debacle was over. Manager Don Heckner, saying only "I'm sick," also made a quick departure from Crosley Field.

The big obvious trouble, of course, has been lack of hitting and DeWitt said, "when fellows like (John) Edwards, (Deron) Johnson and (Pete) Rose don't hit you're in trouble. However, I think you'll find that when one fellow starts hitting they all do."

Is there anything beneath the surface?

That is a question that can bring several types of comment.

One player says there is no dissension among the players but that the pitchers are unhappy because they aren't told in advance who is going to work.

Some of the grandstand managers also wonder whether Heffner's repeated shuffling of his lineup has caused uncertainty among the players. Some of the players will give you a private "yes" answer to that.

Heffner has used Gordy Coleman, Tony Perez, Don Pavletich and Johnson at first base. Rose started the season at third base with Johnson in the outfield and rookie Tommy Helms at second. Since then, Rose has moved back to second, Helms has taken over third and Johnson is shuttled around.

All of the outfielders have been in various positions or on the bench.

The Reds haven't had a field captain for many years and one player expressed belief there might be a need for a team leader. He said Frank Robinson, traded to Baltimore in the offseason, more or less filled the job previously. DeWitt says, however, he considers Edwards to have been more the leader of the players.

"We all are wondering why it all happens at once," said a player. "It seems everything has gone to pieces."

There also was one "yes" answer as to whether there is a question of real leadership, either managerial or among the players.

DeWitt took exception to that, too.

"If I wasn't satisfied with the leadership I'd do something about it and I have no plans along that line," he said.

Some of the players think Heffner, whom they like, might be better off if he'd get a little tougher with them.

But one thing is certain—the Crosley Field booing section is in full force.

White Sox Top Solons On 3-Hitter

CHICAGO (AP) — Jack Lamabe scattered three hits for his second straight shutout as the Chicago White Sox trimmed Washington 8-0 Friday night.

Lamabe, who had never pitched a shutout in the major leagues prior to this season, followed up his one-hit victory over Boston last Monday by blanking the Senators for his third victory in four decisions.

The White Sox scored three runs in the second inning off Mike McCormick and routed the Washington southpaw during a four-run outburst in the fourth. J. C. Martin paced the White Sox with two run-scoring singles and a sacrifice fly. Floyd Robinson drove in two runs with a single and double.

Rookie Lee Elia scored the first run of the game after tripling to right for his first extra base hit in the majors.

Gibson stymied the staggering Braves on two hits and had retired 14 men in a row going into the ninth. But after getting the first two outs, he gave up Hank Aaron's 18th homer and a single to Felipe Alou.

Hoerner then came on and fanned Mack Jones for the final out, saving Gibson's seventh victory against five defeats.

Curt Flood collected four hits in four at bats for St. Louis but was erased three times after singles when Orlando Cepeda hit into three double plays equalling a National League record.

Flood's fourth hit was a triple in the eighth inning, which drove in Tim McCarver who had walked. The Cardinals had taken a 2-1 lead in the seventh when Lou Brock singled, stole second, was sacrificed to third and scored on Jerry Buchek's sacrifice fly.

St. Louis' tying run came in the third inning when Julian Javier singled, stole second, went to third on Gibson's infield bouncer and raced home on Bob Tolan's sacrifice fly.

That run ended a scoreless streak of 23 innings for the Cardinals.

Astronaut Plans To Ride Little Rocket Ship In Blazing New Trails For Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Blazing new trails for space walking astronauts, Eugene A. Cernan plans to zip through the boundless vacuum outside Gemini 9 Saturday riding his own little rocket ship.

"It's sophisticated," said Cernan of the ship, a sporty gray and white back pack with 12 tiny rockets and a set of "bat wings."

For about an hour of his 2 hour and 25 minute stroll, man's longest venture outside an orbiting spacecraft, Cernan will be a human satellite orbiting earth at 17,500 miles an hour. Precious oxygen for life will be fed from the pack.

Though the pack can shoot him from place to place, Cernan will not see flames spewing from the rockets, hear the bursts or feel any motion.

For safety's sake, during his orbital acrobatics with the affair, known as an Astronaut Maneuvering Unit — AMU — he'll be connected to Gemini 9 with a nylon tether, allowing him to slip up to 140 feet from the spacecraft.

And, Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Gemini 9 command pilot, plans to stand guard in the capsule always keeping in close contact over a two-way radio with Cernan. Green running lights have been placed on all sides of the AMU to help Stafford spot him.

The idea is to find out how well man can maneuver in the strange weightless environment and what he needs to conduct such things as space rescue, movement between vehicles, satellite inspection, and spacecraft repair.

"We'll learn if we need anything as sophisticated as the AMU, or if we can do it with something simpler," said Navy Lt. Cmdr. Cernan.

The Air Force has spent over $10 million on the AMU experiment, due also to be conducted on Gemini 12, the last flight of the nation's two-man space program.

The unit, primed and ready, was stored in the rear equipment section of Gemini 9 for the rigorous ride into orbit. Cernan puts it on after the first hour of his walk.

Cernan backs up to the rather bulky pack in the open end of the spacecraft, unfolds the unit's two arm rests, straddles its small saddle seat and snugly buckles the straps.

Then, after Stafford pulls the spacecraft away from the vehicle, Cernan maneuvers around to the front of Gemini 9 so Stafford can see him fully outfitted. He warms up the 12 small rockets with short bursts, this disconnects an umbilical line that has fed him spacecraft oxygen. A black knob on each arm rest fires the rockets. The control on the left propels him forward, backward, up or down. The one on the right positions him for movement to the side.

For instance, push the left knob forward to go straight ahead; pull to the rear to go in reverse. Four rockets fire to shoot him forward; four, to the rear; two, up, and two, down.

Cernan can zip where he wants to go, stop and stabilize himself. A stabilization system, complete with gyros to sense any tumbling, automatically fires the rockets if the astronaut wants it to, thus allowing Cernan to keep both hands free for work.

Built mainly of aluminum, the unit weighs about 165 pounds fully loaded with oxygen and hydrogen peroxide fuel on earth, but nothing in the weightless void of space. It's 32 inches tall, 22 inches wide and 19 inches deep.

Astronaut Plans To Ride Little Rocket Ship In Blazing New Trails For Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Blazing new trails for space walking astronauts, Eugene A. Cernan plans to zip through the boundless vacuum outside Gemini 9 Saturday riding his own little rocket ship.

"It's sophisticated," said Cernan of the ship, a sporty gray and white back pack with 12 tiny rockets and a set of "bat wings."

For about an hour of his 2 orbital acrobatics with the 2-hour and 25 minute stroll, man's longest venture outside an orbiting spacecraft, Cernan will be a human satellite orbiting earth at 17,500 miles an hour. Precious oxygen for life will be fed from the pack.

Though the pack can shoot him from place to place, Cernan will not see flames spewing from the rockets, hear the bursts or feel any motion.

For safety's sake, during his orbital acrobatics with the af-fair, known as an Astronaut Ma-neuvering Unit — AMU — he'll be connected to Gemini 9 with a nylon tether, allowing him to slip up to 140 feet from the spacecraft.

And, Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford, Gemini 9 command pilot, plans to stand guard in the capsule always keeping in close contact over a two-way radio with Cernan. Green running lights have been placed on all sides of the AMU to help Stafford spot him.

The idea is to find out how well man can maneuver in the strange weightless environment and what he needs to conduct such things as space rescue, movement between vehicles, satellite inspection, and spacecraft repair.

"We'll learn if we need anything as sophisticated as the AMU, or if we can do it with something simpler," said Navy Lt. Cmdr. Cernan.

The Air Force has spent over $10 million on the AMU experiment, due also to be conducted on Gemini 12, the last flight of the nation's two-man space program.

The unit, primed and ready, was stored in the rear equipment section of Gemini 9 for the rigorous ride into orbit. Cernan puts it on after the first hour of his walk.

Cernan backs up to the rather bulky pack in the open end of the spacecraft, unfolds the unit's two arm rests, straddles its small saddle seat and snugly buckles the straps.

Then, after Stafford pulls the spacecraft away from the vehicle, Cernan maneuvers around to the front of Gemini 9 so Stafford can see him fully outfitted. He warms up the 12 small rockets with short bursts, this disconnects an umbilical line that has fed him spacecraft oxygen.

A black knob on each arm rest fires the rockets. The control on the left propels him forward, backward, up or down. The one on the right positions him for movement to the side.

For instance, push the left knob forward to go straight ahead; pull to the rear to go in reverse. Four rockets fire to shoot him forward; four, to the rear; two, up, and two, down.

Cernan can zip where he wants to go, stop and stabilize himself. A stabilization system, complete with gyros to sense any tumbling, automatically fires the rockets if the astronaut wants it to, thus allowing Cernan to keep both hands free for work.

Built mainly of aluminum, the unit weighs about 166 pounds fully loaded with oxygen and hydrogen peroxide fuel on earth, but nothing in the weightless void of space. It's 32 inches tall, 22 inches wide and 19 inches deep.

MRS. HOWARD ELLINGTON LEWIS JR.

MRS. HOWARD ELLINGTON LEWIS JR.

Florida Presbyterian Church
Scene Of Lewis-Alford Vows

The First Presbyterian Church, Chipley, Florida was the setting Saturday, May 21, at six o'clock for the marriage of Miss Florence Betha Alford, daughter of Mrs. Frank Wilson Alford and the late Alford of Chipley to Howard Ellington Lewis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ellington Lewis of Monroe. The Reverend Morris A. Taylor, cousin of the bride of Canton, Mississippi performed the ceremony. A program of traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. G. U. Myers, organist. "Ave Maria" was played softly throughout the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her uncle, S. A. Alford Jr., the bride wore a gown of white, peau de soie, and hand clipped lace. Her dress featured a sabrina neckline with a yoke of re-embroidered Alencon lace outlined with seed pearls. The bodice came to a point in front and the long fitted sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists were fastened with tiny covered buttons. The bell shaped skirt was appliqued with panels of matching lace and a cascade bustle was shirred to form a chapel length train. Her butterfly veil was caught by a peau de soie rose embroidered with seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was fashioned with a single white orchid.

Miss Frances Alford, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her floor length gown of petal pink silk dotted swiss was caught at the raised waistline with a narrow band of matching pink velvet which tied in a flat bow in the back and streamed to the hemline. The elbow length sleeves ended in ruffled cuffs of imported lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of multi-shaded pink carnations.

Mr. Charles Merkel Jr. of Montgomery, Alabama served his cousin as best man. Ushers were Larry Levitan of Atlanta and Lynn Stokes of Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Alford, mother of the bride, wore a street length dress of turquoise imported Chantilly lace over matching crepe. The overblouse effect was belted with satin ties in front. She wore a corsage of pink feathered carnations.

Mrs. Lewis, mother of the groom, wore a dress of shell pink linen featuring lace inserts. Her corsage was also of pink carnations.

Following the wedding the bride's mother entertained at a reception for the couple at the home of S. A. Alford Jr. of Chipley. Spring flowers and greenery decorated the living room while pink gladioli and carnations adorned the sewing table. Tall silver candelabrum with long pink tapers flanked the tiered cake on the bride's table.

Mrs. Eva Shirville and Mrs. C. B. Dunn Jr. greeted guests at the door. The brides book was presented over by Mrs. Morris A. Taylor and Mrs. E. L. Alford. Cutting the cake were Mrs. Paul S. Alford and Mrs. Malcolm Bennett Jr. Serving as floor hostesses were Mrs. S. A. Alford III, Mrs. Charles B. Dunn III, Mrs. Charles Temples, Miss Jean Dickenson, Mrs. A.

Hints From Heloise

Pre-Folded Diapers Still Have Small Disadvantage

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise: While shopping for baby things for our first arrival, I came across pre-folded diapers. Most of us know how nice it would be not to have to fold mountains of diapers each wash-day. But for those of us who have no dryer, these pre-folded diapers take twice as long to dry (longer in the dryer, too). Thereby, I suggest the new mother buy only half of her diapers pre-folded. She can dry the unfolded diapers faster when needed.

Mrs. L. Zollner

Dear Heloise: Sugar mixed with a favorite spice, such as powdered cloves, powdered cinnamon or allspice and sprinkled on top of ready-made frozen fruit pies just before baking them, adds much to the flavor and makes it taste more homemade.

R. Cummings

Dear Heloise: How can we keep a newspaper clipping announcement from turning yellow? So many of us like to cut out with double sleeves.

Carole Falkner

Dear Heloise: It seemed that my bathroom window shade over the tub had to be replaced constantly. It was getting pretty expensive, so I bought some oil cloth that blended in with my bathroom colors. After removing the old shade from the roller, I used it as a pattern and cut out the oilcloth. I then tacked the oilcloth on the old shade roller, and presto, a brand new shade that has held up a good many years.

This worked so well that I have done the same thing to my kitchen shade.

Just this year I needed new shades in my bedrooms, so I used pretty vinyl the same way. This solved my problem of shades and is certainly less expensive in the long run.

Mrs. T.R.R.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: With all your time saving hints, how come I don't have any spare time???

Mrs. C.

Dear Heloise: When I have some dried-out cheese that is too hard to eat, I grate it and store it in a plastic bag in the freezer to use in soups, macaroni, etc.

Mrs. Mary R. Bennet

Dear Abby

Nose That's Okay On Pop Not So Pretty For Sister

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter (whom I shall call "Hilda") is graduating from high school in June, so my rich sister sent her a $500 check with a note, "To get your nose fixed, honey."

Now, Abby, Hilda's nose isn't that bad. She resembles my father, and his nose goes with his face. Some of Hilda's friends have had their noses fixed and she's been after us ever since to let her get hers done. We have said we couldn't afford it. Now what can we say?

I am so burned up at my sister I can hardly see to write this. She had HER nose bobbed a few years ago and she thinks she looks like Elizabeth Taylor, but I think her old nose had more character.

Abby, do you think my sister had any right sending our daughter that check for a nose job, knowing how we fought against it? And should we let Hilda do it even tho she really doesn't need it?

FAMILY NOSE FIGHT

DEAR NOSE FIGHT: Your sister should have kept her bobbed nose out of your family fight. But you could marry your doctor and your husband could marry your best friend. (Assuming, of course that they followed suit.) That would leave your best friend's husband and the doctor's wife at loose ends. If you could sell them on EACH OTHER, you could turn a wreck-tangle into a sex-tangle. But with all that switching and hitching, there's apt to be some ditching. I recommend living with the ills you know.

Dear Heloise: What's the best way to clean a diamond ring?

Newlywed

Congratulations on two things. Your marriage and your diamond.

Jewelers recommend soaking them for 30 minutes in a little jar with half ammonia and half water. Remove them and brush gently with a soft brush, then rinse and dry. That's all there is to it.

Hints From Heloise

Pre-Folded Diapers Still Have Small Disadvantage

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise: While shopping for baby things for our first arrival, I came across pre-folded diapers. Most of us know how nice it would be not to have to fold mountains of diapers each wash-day. But for those of us who have no dryer, these pre-folded diapers take twice as long to dry (longer in the dryer, too).

and save little wedding and birth announcements. Grandmother Outside of being professionally preserved or putting a cover over it, I have had good luck spraying it with hair spray! Brand seems to make no difference. Don't try to put too much spray on at a time. Spray the clipping lightly three or four times (about 30 minutes apart) while it is lying on a flat surface.

with double sleeves. Carole Falkner

Dear Heloise: It seemed that my bathroom window shade over the tub had to be replaced constantly. It was getting pretty expensive, so I bought some oil cloth that blended in with my bathroom colors. After removing the old shade from the roller, I used it as a pattern and cut out the oilcloth. I then tacked the oilcloth on the old shade roller, and presto, a brand new shade that has held up a good many years.

This worked so well that I have done the same thing to my kitchen shade. Just this year I needed new shades in my bedrooms, so I used pretty vinyl the same way. This solved my problem of shades and is certainly less expensive in the long run. Mrs. T.R.R.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: With all your time saving hints, how come I don't have any spare time???

Dear Heloise: When I have some dried-out cheese that is too hard to eat, I grate it and store it in a plastic bag in the freezer to use in soups, macaroni, etc. Mrs. Mary R. Bennet

Dear Abby

Nose That's Okay On Pop Not So Pretty For Sister

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter (whom I shall call "Hilda") is graduating from high school in June, so my rich sister sent her a $500 check with a note, "To get your nose fixed, honey."

Now, Abby, Hilda's nose isn't that bad. She resembles my father, and his nose goes with his face. Some of Hilda's friends have had their noses fixed and she's been after us ever since to let her get hers done. We have said we couldn't afford it. Now what can we say?

I am so burned up at my sister I can hardly see to write this. She had HER nose bobbed a few years ago and she thinks she looks like Elizabeth Taylor, but I think her old nose had more character.

Abby, do you think my sister had any right sending our daughter that check for a nose job, knowing how we fought against it? And should we let Hilda do it even though she really doesn't need it?

consider your daughter. HER nose doesn't have to go with her father's face. And if a girl's character is in her nose, heaven help her. If Hilda thinks she needs to have her nose resculpted, she needs it. Take her to a competent plastic surgeon for a consultation. He won't chisel needlessly.

DEAR ABBY: I never did love my husband. I just married him for security, and I've been miserable ever since. I suppose I should tell you that I'm in love with my doctor. (That's why I've been so "sickly" much of the time.) He is very unhappy at home. My husband is in love with my best friend, who is also trapped in a loveless marriage.

My husband would be much happier with my best friend, and I would be happier with my doctor. Isn't there some way this can be worked out so that nobody will be hurt? You only live once, you know.

DEAR UNHAPPY: If you and your husband were to terminate your marriage, you could marry your doctor and your husband could marry your best friend. (Assuming, of course, that they followed suit.) That would leave your best friend's husband and the doctor's wife at loose ends. If you could sell them on EACH OTHER, you could turn a wreck-tangle into a sex-tangle. But with all that switching and hitching, there's apt to be some ditching. I recommend living with the ills you know.

Woman In Prison Now Pregnant

ST. GABRIEL, La. (AP)—An inmate of the Louisiana Prison for Women for nearly 1 1/2 years is five months pregnant, the New Orleans States Item newspaper said Friday.

Wingate White, state director of institutions, said the woman became pregnant by a former guard of the prison here. He left work before her condition was discovered, White said.

The 25-year-old New Orleans woman has a long record of prostitution, narcotics and other arrests dating back to 1953, authorities said.

White said she concealed her condition until recently. When it came to light, White said, the employee was already gone and no action can be taken against him.

The relationship occurred, White said, while the man was supposed to be guarding a detail of women prisoners.

Under procedure the woman will have her baby at New Orleans Charity Hospital and the infant will be taken by the Department of Welfare for possible adoption or placement in a foster home.

Jim Garrison, Orleans Parish district attorney, who obtained convictions against the woman, was highly critical of prison operations.

"Undoubtedly, a vague explanation will be developed for this incident or some kind of investigation will be promised... and that will be the end of it. This is not good enough any more," he said.

"We have had enough of these incidents to show us that our system doesn't work."

He said Louisiana needed a modern correctional system, free of political influence.

Garrison said the woman involved in the St. Gabriel incident is serving two concurrent 2 1/2 year terms for crimes against nature and two concurrent 5-year terms for narcotics violations, all imposed in 1965.

Rites Today For Noted Businessman

Funeral services for Fred Fudickar Sr., 77, noted Monroe and area businessman, will be held at 3 p.m. today at the Grace Episcopal Church with the Rev. W. Bradley Trimble, rector, officiating. Burial will follow in the Old City Cemetery under the direction of Peters Funeral Home.

Mr. Fudickar, of 1114 Riverside Dr., Monroe, apparently died in his sleep Thursday night. He was found dead about 5 a.m. at his fishing camp about 10 miles from Ferriday when one of his sons, John Bennett Fudickar, went to awaken him for a morning fishing excursion.

A life-long resident of Monroe, he was director of the Ouachita National Bank, founder of the Consolidated Ice Company in Monroe and owner and operator of the 1,400-acre Kilden Plantation, about two miles east of Monroe.

Having founded the first ice company in Monroe, Mr. Fudickar recently began a string of ice companies from Vidalia to Oak Grove, now managed by his son, John Bennett Fudickar of Ferriday.

He also acquired a number of Pic-Quick Stores, small order establishments, in various parts of the state and in Natchez, Miss.

He is the father of Monroe attorney and former Ouachita district attorney Fred Fudickar Jr.

Besides his two sons, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bessie Johnston Fudickar of Monroe; a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin S. Pace of Baton Rouge; 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The family asked that any memorials be made in form of donations to the Grace Episcopal Church in Monroe.

Pallbearers will be C. McVea Oliver, Pat J. Riley, Allen C. Barham, W. H. Davis Jr., R. O. Allen and R. L. Vanderpool Jr.

Insurance Inspection Tour Slated

Tex R. and K. D. Kilpatrick, co-owners of the new home office of Kilpatrick's Central American Life Insurance Company, 1400 N. 7th St., West Monroe, announced that there would be an "inspection tour" of the refurbished Kilpatrick Funeral Home at the formal opening of the insurance office today and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. each day.

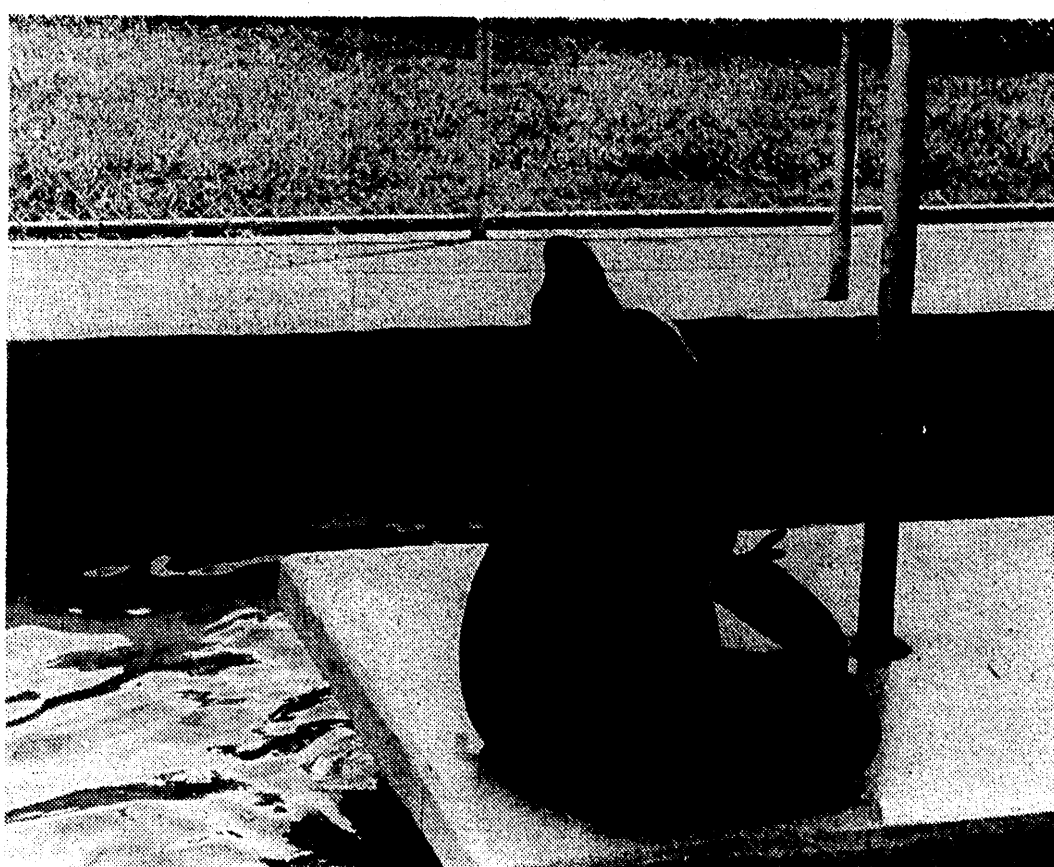

The modern structure housing the Central American's staff represents an investment of more than $150,000. The building contains several offices, kitchenette and coffee room, record and machine rooms and a staff meeting room with a seating capacity of more than 100.

The grounds adjoining the large parking lot flanking three sides of the building are landscaped.

Space formerly occupied by Kilpatrick's Funeral Home's insurance offices has been converted to funeral home use. There are now four permanent state rooms and a sitting room which can be made into a fifth state room through the use of drapes and folding doors.

The chapel now has a seating capacity for more than 400, with an adequate family room. The lobby has been extended and new furnishings and accessories have been added.

Favors will be presented to visitors, refreshments will be served and guides will be on hand for personally conducted tours of both buildings today and Sunday.

TAD, THE SEA LION, one of three sea lions recently added to the Monroe Zoo, rests and relaxes after a swim in his new home at Bernstein Park.

West Monroe Chamber Opposes Tax Measure

Opposition to the present wording of House Bill 854, concerning the one-cent sales tax, was expressed Friday by the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce following a meeting of the board of directors to discuss the measure.

The chamber expressed opposition to the entire bill as it is now written but left the way open for different decisions concerning any possible revisions of the measure.

Similar opposition to the tax bill was expressed Thursday afternoon by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce following a meeting of its board of directors.

A formal declaration of policy by the Monroe chamber was forwarded to Rep. Lawrence Gibbs in Baton Rouge.

Rep. Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish introduced the bill in the Louisiana House of Representatives. The one-cent sales tax in the Fifth District would boost school employees' salaries.

The House Bill is designed to amend Title 33 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes of 1950. It would authorize the parish school boards in 13 parishes included in the Fifth District to levy and collect a sales and use tax not in excess of one percent, upon approval by the electors of all the parishes. All parishes must approve the imposition and means of collection and disposition of the tax.

Members of the West Monroe chamber's board of directors met Friday morning with the legislative committee to discuss both sides of the measure. The legislative committee, headed by chairman Sam Henry, voted to recommend to the board that the chamber oppose the measure. A subsequent statement by the board expressed the chamber's opposition to the bill. Opposition turned on inequities found in the present wording of the bill.

Chamber vice president Louis Gruber presided over the board in the absence of chamber President Roy Brooks. The board released this statement: "The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce opposes House Bill 854, due to the inequities found in the present wording of the bill—the chief one being that of Ouachita Parish bearing the 51 percent majority of the total burden of taxation with only 28 percent of the proceeds to be returned to our parish for educational purposes."

Chamber manager Eugene Smith, further clarifying the board's stand on the measure, said "We did not see fit to oppose the proposed bill, point-by-point, but rather to oppose the entire bill as it now is written. This does not mean we would oppose any and all revisions of the same measure. But we do oppose this bill as it now is written."

Monroe Zoo Gets 3 New Sea Lions

The Monroe City Zoo at Bernstein Park was received three new sea lions.

A zoo official said that the three were shipped from California into Shreveport two weeks ago, where they were picked up and transported to their new home in Bernstein Park.

The sea lions go by the names of Tad, Dena and Laura. They are all around nine months old. Tad, the male, weighs about 170 pounds now. Sea lions of his species sometimes weigh as much as 600 pounds after full growth.

Dena and Laura, the two females, now weigh about 40 pounds.

The sea lions attract a great deal of attention from visitors to the zoo. A zoo spokesman said that these will take the place of the sea lions that died of heart worms recently. He said "they were the most missed animals" by the public.

It will be taught from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

Economics 405, Intermediate Microeconomic Analysis, may be taken by both undergraduates and graduates and will be offered from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. Monday and Wednesday evenings. The course covers the theory of consumption, analysis of production, firm behavior in various types of markets, income distribution, the price system and allocation of resources.

Marketing 405, Sales Management, is also open to undergraduates. It will be taught from 6:30 to 9:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday night and deals with the organization of sales departments; selecting, training, paying and motivating of salesmen; and other aspects of sales.

Dean Vines also pointed out that there are many courses which will be taught from 7 to 7:50 in the morning that working men and women may take. Persons desiring further information may contact Dean Vines or Dr. Lake Oxford, registrar.

Woman In Prison Now Pregnant

ST. GABRIEL, La. (AP)—An inmate of the Louisiana Prison for Women for nearly 1½ years is five months pregnant, the New Orleans States Item newspaper said Friday.

Wingate White, state director of institutions, said the woman became pregnant by a former guard of the prison here. He left work before her condition was discovered, White said.

The 25-year-old New Orleans woman has a long record of postpartum, narcotics and other arrests dating back to 1958, authorities said.

White said she concealed her condition until recently. When it came to light, White said, the employee was already gone and no action can be taken against him.

The relationship occurred, White said, while the man was supposed to be guarding a detail of women prisoners.

Under procedure the woman will have her baby at New Orleans Charity Hospital and the infant will be taken by the Department of Welfare for possible adoption or placement in a foster home.

Jim Garrison, Orleans Parish district attorney, who obtained convictions against the woman, was highly critical of prison operations.

"Undoubtedly, a vague explanation will be developed for this incident or some kind of investigation will be promised... and that will be the end of it. This is not good enough any more," he said.

"We have had enough of these incidents to show us that our system doesn't work."

He said Louisiana needed a modern correctional system, free of political influence.

Garrison said the woman involved in the St. Gabriel incident is serving two concurrent 2½ year terms for crimes against nature and two concurrent 5-year-terms for narcotics violations, all imposed in 1965.

Rites Today For Noted Businessman

Funeral services for Fred Fudickar Sr., 77, noted Monroe and area businessman, will be held at 3 p.m. today at the Grace Episcopal Church with the Rev. W. Bradley Trimble, rector, officiating. Burial will follow in the Old City Cemetery under the direction of Peters Funeral Home.

Mr. Fudickar, of 1114 Riverside Dr., Monroe, apparently died in his sleep Thursday night. He was found dead about 5 a.m. at his fishing camp about 10 miles from Ferriday when one of his sons, John Bennett Fudickar, went to awaken him for a morning fishing excursion.

A life-long resident of Monroe, he was director of the Ouachita National Bank, founder of the Consolidated Ice Company in Monroe and owner and operator of the 1,400-acre Kildon Plantation, about two miles east of Monroe.

Having founded the first ice company in Monroe, Mr. Fudickar recently began a string of ice companies from Vidalia to Oak Grove, now managed by his son, John Bennett Fudickar of Ferriday.

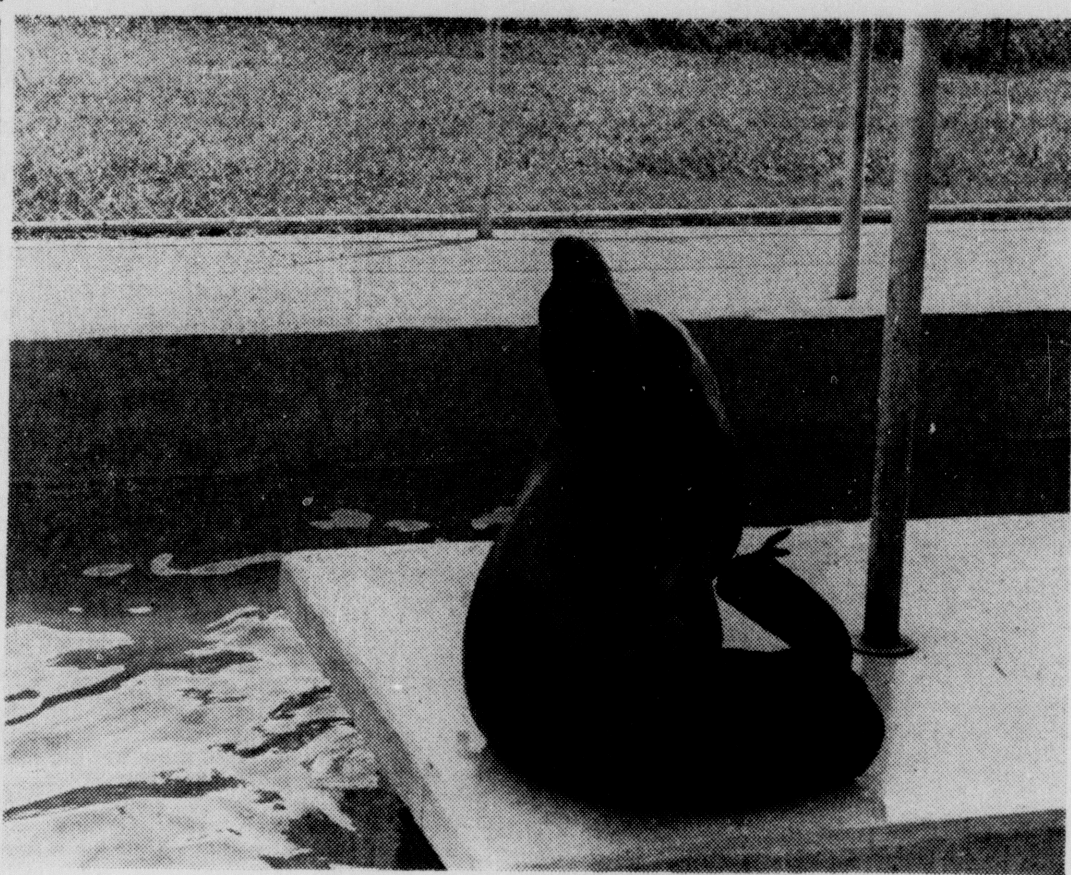

He also acquired a number of Pic-Quick Stores, small order establishments, in various parts of the state and in Natchez, Miss.

He is the father of Monroe attorney and former Ouachita district attorney Fred Fudickar Jr.

Besides his two sons, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bessie Johnston Fudickar of Monroe; a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin S. Pace of Baton Rouge; 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The family asked that any memorials be made in form of donations to the Grace Episcopal Church in Monroe.

Palbearers will be C. McVea Oliver, Pat J. Riley, Allen C. Barham, W. H. Davis Jr., R. O. Allen and R. L. Vanderpool Jr.

TAD, THE SEA LION, one of three sea lions recently added to the Monroe Zoo, rests and relaxes after a swim in his new home at Bernstein Park.

West Monroe Chamber Opposes Tax Measure

Opposition to the present wording of House Bill 854, concerning the one-cent sales tax, was expressed Friday by the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce following a meeting of the board of directors to discuss the measure.

The chamber expressed opposition to the entire bill as it is now written but left the way open for different decisions concerning any possible revisions of the measure.

Similar opposition to the tax bill was expressed Thursday afternoon by the Monroe Chamber of Commerce following a meeting of its board of directors.

A formal declaration of policy by the Monroe chamber was forwarded to Rep. Lawrence Gibbs in Baton Rouge.

Rep. Lantz Womack of Franklin Parish introduced the bill in the Louisiana House of Representatives. The one-cent sales tax in the Fifth District would boost school employees' salaries.

The House Bill is designed to amend Title 33 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes of 1950. It would authorize the parish school boards in 13 parishes to levy and collect a sales and use tax not in excess of one percent, upon approval by the electors of all the parishes. All parishes must approve the imposition and means of collection and disposition of the tax.

Members of the West Monroe chamber's board of directors met Friday morning with the legislative committee to discuss both sides of the measure. The legislative committee, headed by chairman Sam Henry, voted to recommend to the board that the chamber oppose the measure.

A subsequent statement by the board expressed the chamber's opposition to the bill. Opposition turned on inequities found in the present wording of the bill.

Chamber vice president Louis Gruber presided over the board in the absence of chamber President Roy Brooks.

The board released this statement:

"The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce opposes House Bill 854, due to the inequities found in the present wording of the bill — the chief one being that of Ouachita Parish being the 51 per cent majority of the total burden of taxation, with only 28 per cent of the proceeds to be returned to our parish for educational purposes."

Chamber manager Eugene Smith, further clarifying the board's stand on the measure, said "We did not see fit to oppose the proposed bill, point-by-point, but rather to oppose the entire bill as it now is written. This does not mean we would oppose any and all revisions of the same measure. But we do oppose this bill as it now is written."

State Meeting Of Party Slated

The state convention of The Constitution Party of Louisiana will be held at the Oak Manor Motel on Airline Highway in Baton Rouge June 12, E. S. Bolton, director of programming announced Friday.

Bolton said that persons interested in running for office on the Constitution Party ticket should attend the meeting.

Three candidates have announced for parish offices and one for state office.

State officers and delegates to the National Convention, which will be held in Jackson, Miss., June 23 - 25, will be appointed at the state convention. Some 25,000 are expected to attend the rally on the last day of the National Convention, coming from all parts of the nation, Bolton said.

Monroe Zoo Gets 3 New Sea Lions

The Monroe City Zoo at Bernstein Park was received three new sea lions.

A zoo official said that the three were shipped from California into Shreveport two weeks ago, where they were picked up and transported to their new home in Bernstein Park.

The sea lions go by the names of Tad, Dena and Laura. They are all around nine months old. Tad, the male, weighs about 170 pounds now. Sea lions of his specie sometimes weigh as much as 600 pounds after full growth.

Dena and Laura, the two females, now weigh about 40 pounds.

The sea lions attract a great deal of attention from visitors to the zoo. A zoo spokesman said that these will take the place of the sea lions that died of heart worms recently. He said "they were the most missed animals" by the public.

Congo Suicides Said Not True

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP)—The Congo's commissioner for information, Jean-Jacques Kande, reversed an announcement he had made Friday saying the wife and brother of a hanged politician had committed suicide after his death Thursday.

"I have been misinformed," Kande said. "The brother and wife of Emmanuel Bamba have not committed suicide."

Bamba was one of four former Congolese Cabinet members hanged in public Thursday for allegedly plotting to murder President Joseph Mobutu.

REFRESHMENTS... FAVORS

CENTRAL AMERICAN is dedicated to serving the area with the most comprehensive funeral and life insurance program for the complete protection of its policy holders. The successful history of our personal commitment to serving individuals with a thoughtful, careful, personal plan commensurate with specific needs is reflected in our company's sound and rapid growth to the largest of its type in Northeast Louisiana. Total policies in force as of June 1, 1966, numbered 26,500, an annual premium income in excess of $500,000.00, with a total insurance in force of $12,000,000.00.

This is substantial evidence of the acceptance of the planned insurance programs of Central American. It serves, too, as a basis for our projected plans for a continuing healthy growth and expansion to serve ever better our policy holders' needs.

Commissioner

DAVE L. Pearce, Louisiana commissioner of Agriculture, has defended the milk industry's stand of milk price fixing and has tossed a few verbal darts at Rep. John Schwegmann of Jefferson Parish.

Pearce, in a speech here Friday, kicking off this year's "June is Dairy Month" celebration, praised Louisiana's stabilized milk industry.

He also accused Schwegmann of wanting to use milk to lure people into his stores. "He wants to use it (milk) to attract people by using it as a leader product to make a profit on other goods he sells," Pearce said of Schwegmann.

Schwegmann is the New Orleans merchant-state representative who this week attempted to win approval on legislation which would take away the Louisiana Milk Commission's power to fix milk prices. His attempts failed.

"We have opposed him," Pearce said. "We don't want to see him put anyone out of business."

Pearce cited the results of a milk price war in Missouri in which he said 1,400 dairy men were forced out of business.

"While the (milk) war was going on, it was the dairy men who felt it. They simply couldn't survive," he noted. "Only the large national people were able to survive."

He said that prices climbed to a high level after the war. "In Louisiana, we are more stable," he pointed out. "We balance it by holding everyone together and working at a reasonable price."
